RAILROAD HEAD AND HOTEL MAN FACE RUM QUIZ

Manager of Willard Called to Fix Date of Wet Dinner.

E. E. LOOMIS IS ONE BROOKHART NAMED

Grand Jury Also to Quiz Author of Article in Magazine.

SENATORS NOT YET CALLED TO APPEAR

Police Continue Campaign Against Higher-Ups in Liquor Traffic.

Continuing its determination to find out how wet the Capital may be, and why, the grand jury today will question E. E. Loomis, president of the Lehigh Valley Railroad; Frank E. Light, manager of the Willard Hotel; and Walter W. Liggett, author of an article in Plain Talk magazine in which he claims that Washington is wetter now than ever before.

Courteous invitations to appear were extended to Loomis and Light last week by United States Attorney Leo A. Rover, after Senator Smith W. Brookhart (Republican) of Iowa, had told of a party at the Willard in December, 1928, at which several senators and financial leaders were present and liquor was consumed.

Senator Brookhart appeared before the grand jury last week, and it is understood to have read verbatim a speech which he made the previous day on the Senate floor. In this speech, Brookhart gave the details of the Willard party and named Loomis as a man whom he saw take a drink which he believed was whiskey. Brookhart declared that he sat between Loomis and Otto Kahn, and that the former pulled a silver flask from his pocket and poured out "some liquid which was so strong he had to dilute it with water."

Hight to Fix Date.
The senator was not positive about the date of the now famous "Wall Street party," but Hight is expected to fix it definitely for whatever purpose the grand jury may desire. He has been requested to bring the books of the hotel which will show the time Walter J. Fahy, Wall Street host at the party, was registered at the hotel, and the date of the party, if it is possible to find that information in the books.

In inviting Loomis and Hight to appear before the grand jury, Rover followed the same procedure he used when Senator Brookhart first told the Senate of the alleged party. The senator was invited to appear before the grand jury, and he accepted promptly. Loomis and Hight also accepted the invitations, making it unnecessary for Rover to subpoena them.

As yet no steps have been taken to invite the senators whom Brookhart said were present at the Fahy dinner, and it is unlikely that any will.

Following Brookhart's appearance before the grand jury, Rover told J. M. Fitzpatrick, foreman of the body, that it was entirely up to the grand jurors if they desired to call the senator's testimony. Fitzpatrick was closeted with Rover for half an hour on the following day, after which Rover announced that Loomis had been called. On the following day Hight also was invited, this action likewise being in response to the grand jury's wishes, it was said.

Rover to Aid Inquiry.
Rover announced Saturday that he personally would conduct Loomis and Hight before the grand jury. Ordinarily the United States attorney is too busy to take cases before the grand jury, leaving that to the qualified assistants, but due to the stress placed on the affair by Brookhart, Rover examined the senator before the grand jury and, having started the investigation, will carry it on.

In Liggett's article, he asserted that there are now more than twice as many speakeasies and "rum flats" in the Capital as there were saloons and retail liquor stores before prohibition, and that the consumption of alcoholic beverages now is likewise substantially larger than previously. It is expected that Liggett may give the grand jury a mass of particularly important data relative to the illicit production and consumption of contraband beverages in Washington.

While Rover has announced that his campaign to drive bootleggers, gamblers and other lawbreakers out of Washington is to be a fight to the finish, it becomes increasingly apparent that he is not waging a lone warfare.

Budget of $50,000,000 Is Urged for District

Havener Cites Capital's Present Surplus More Than $8,000,000.

This is the second of a series of articles on the District's financial situation, which appears every morning. It is written by a staff writer for years assigned to municipal activities. The first article appeared yesterday.

By BERNARD McDONNELL.
The program submitted to the Budget Bureau by the District Commissioners for the next fiscal year will leave in the Federal Treasury, untouched and unnumbered, a surplus of about $8,000,000, according to Dr. George C. Havener, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations.

Havener, backed by frequent denials of the Federal and of the Citizens Advisory Council, of which he is presiding officer, is a strong advocate of increased expenditures for badly needed public works in Washington.

"In my opinion," he declared, "the present tax rate of $1.70 should not be reduced. We are not getting the public improvements the city needs. We should continue the tax rate at its present figure and use the revenue nues resulting therefrom as well as the surplus millions which are lying idle in the Treasury."

Of the $48,500,000 total of the regular and supplemental estimates submitted to the Budget Bureau by the District Commissioners for the 1931 fiscal year, Dr. Havener said that approximately $9,000,000 is represented by trust and special funds, making the net amount to be spent

CONGRESS TO SHOW BURGESS ACTIVITIES

To Use Bingham Report Method With Tariff Body Member.

NEXT EXPOSE OF GRUNDY

(Associated Press.)

A report on the activities of William Burgess, a former member of the Tariff Commission, during his stay in Washington while the tariff bill was being framed will be submitted today to the Senate by its lobby committee.

The document will be the second report the committee has compiled since it began its hearings several weeks ago.

The first dealt with the employment of Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, of Charles L. Ryanson, of the Connecticut Manufacturers Association. It precipitated a storm of debate and led to the condemnation of Bingham by the Senate for placing Ryanson on the Senate payroll as a clerk while he was drawing a $10,000 a year salary from his association.

In the Burgess report, it was considered likely that the committee would follow the same procedure as it did in that on Bingham. That report simply gave a summary of the testimony before the committee and made no recommendations.

Senator Caraway (Democrat), Arkansas, chairman of the lobby committee, said he intended to read the Burgess report to the Senate the next day and that other reports would follow as quickly as they could be prepared.

The next one is likely to deal with the activities of Joseph R. Grundy, president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association.

Burgess, who lives at Morrisville, Pa., and now is employed by the United States Pottery Association, testified before the committee that he protested to Chairman Marvin, of the Tariff Commission, against the action of Frederick L. Koonch, chief of the commission's ceramics division, in giving information to congressmen during hearings on the pending tariff bill before the House and Senate committees.

Koch was charged with showing partiality in favor of importers of pottery and with being friendly with the manager of a Japanese import.

POLICEMAN HELD HERE IN SHOOTING

Patrolman, of Philadelphia, Said to Admit Part in Brawl There.

FLED IN FEAR, HE SAYS

(Associated Press.)

Confessing to shooting a man in a Philadelphia brawl Saturday night when he was seized near the Union Station yesterday, Emmett Clarence Jackson, 27 years old, a Philadelphia policeman, was held here as a fugitive from justice for authorities in that city.

Police Driver Ford M. Jones, attached to the Detective Bureau here, on motorizing to his home at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, observed an automobile bearing a Pennsylvania license plate being parked at North Capitol and G streets by a man wearing a uniform appearing to be that of a police department. He recognized the last two numbers on the machine tag as corresponding to the figures on a "lookout" broadcast by Philadelphia police and placed the man under arrest.

Jackson, still wearing his uniform as a member of the thirty-eighth Police District in Philadelphia, readily identified himself in confessing to the shooting, according to Jones, who lodged him in the Sixth Precinct Station.

"While I was patrolling my beat in Philadelphia Saturday night, a friend suddenly came up to tell me that he had his gun lifted in a speak-easy which was about 55 blocks off my beat," Jackson was quoted as declaring to Jones.

"I immediately went to the place with the intention of getting the weapon back. I found out who took it from my friend and during the tussle which followed there I took out my pistol and fired at the man. He slumped to the floor. I didn't know whether he was dead or alive."

"Anyway," Jackson said, "he and I flash I decided to drive to Washington. I hopped in this machine and came here. That is all there is to the story."

Advice from Philadelphia stated that the policeman seriously wounded Oliver Spriggs, 19 years old, in the home of Cassie Matthews, 710 North June street, in Philadelphia. Jackson, according to police there, dashed into the Fifty-fifth and Pine street station while on duty Saturday night, threw his badge and keys on the house arrest.

How He Became Interested.

Allen said he became interested in the death of Mrs. McPherson when Shelby ordered the Third Precinct to release Robert A. McPherson, Jr., estranged husband of the woman, before he had even been questioned thoroughly or the authenticity of his alibi checked.

In relating his subsequent activities in the case, which resulted in a first degree murder indictment against young McPherson, Allen stated he would have been defeated in his efforts, if he had not tricked the police. He explained that he took a jury of citizens to the Park Lane apartment in which Mrs. Virginia Hurley McPherson was found strangled to death, September 14, and outlined his case to them before the police knew he had started an investigation.

"That maneuver was all that saved me," he said, "for within two days afterward all material evidence available in the apartment had been destroyed."

Allen also stated his "citizens' jury" was responsible for the grand jury's scathing criticism of the police officials and William H. Collins, assistant district attorney. He openly charged

REVISION OF DISTRICT GOVERNMENT URGED

Hero of McPherson Case Hopes for "Right Kind" of Commissioners.

Personnel of Force Draws Clean Bill From Private Who Bucked Major.

Speaking before an admiring crowd, which jammed the hall of the Washington Open Forum to the doors, Robert J. Allen, who now stands convicted of insubordination and is sentenced to dismissal from the Metropolitan Police Force, yesterday afternoon declared a revision of the District government was necessary before gross corruption and dishonesty in public office could be eliminated.

Under the present appointive system, controlled by politics, Allen said, the police officials are responsible only to the political bosses, thus the public has no redress against corrupt practices.

The personnel of the police force as a whole were exonerated by the speaker, who declared that 90 per cent of the policemen were honest and were never guilty of wrongful acts unless forced to act so in order to keep their jobs.

Allen frankly stated he was through as a policeman in Washington, because he had no avenue through which he could hope to overturn the verdict of the Police Trial Board finding him guilty of insubordination.

"I have appealed to the District Commissioners," he said, "but that appeal will do me little good."

Allen asserted the only thing that could break up existing conditions in the law-enforcing department of the District would be a thorough and well-directed congressional investigation, and he intimated there was little likelihood of such an investigation.

The convicted policeman appeared before the Open Forum clad in his overalls and corduroy coat which he wears at the gasoline station where he works, but his every word and act prompted loud and vociferous applause by the assemblage.

Reviews Police Career.
In beginning his impromptu talk, Allen stated he was embarrassed and humiliated by his conviction and consequently did not like to discuss police matters for fear his remarks would be termed "sour grapes."

In discussing his turbulent career as a Washington policeman, he stated that since he ran afoul of the "powers that be" two years ago, when he criticized "third degree" methods while assigned to the Second Precinct, his way had been hard. He declared, however, he was not ashamed or regretful concerning anything he had done during his police career.

"But," he added, "you see what has been my fate, so you people should not expect any one on the police force to emulate my example in fighting for the right regardless of consequences."

Concerning the McPherson case, Allen surprisingly declared that he did not believe Lieut. Kelly, former head of the homicide squad, was a willing party to the actions taken, or to the Police Department solution in the case. He did blame Inspector W. S. Shelby, however, and intimated that possibly higher officials also had a hand in the matter.

WOMAN ADMITS HIDING OF DEAD BOY AND SISTER

Jersey Skeleton Mystery Is Partially Cleared by Confession.

HAD USED CHILDREN IN BLACKMAIL PLOTS

Camden Police Suspect Prisoner of Deaths of Four Others.

GIRL SLAIN BY BLOW; MURDER IS CHARGED

Grim Story Is Followed by Discovery of Torso of Missing Lad.

Newark, N. J., Nov. 10 (N.Y.W.S.N.). A comely woman, with expressionless eyes, walked into Newark police headquarters early today and spun out a confession long and dramatic enough to fill a mystery novel. The confession set in motion a train of events that culminated in her own arrest and arraignment on a charge of murder, and led to a tentative clearing up of the mystery surrounding the disappearance of two Camden (N. J.) children, who had been in her care, and the finding of the skeleton of one a week ago Saturday on a lonely road near National Park, N. J.

The woman gave her name as Miss Gladys May Parks, 35, of 101 Warren street, Newark. She is also known as Mrs. Gladys Parks Baker, according to Anthony Baker, of Newark, with whom, according to police, she has lived as common law wife.

Miss Parks had been sought for several days by police all over New Jersey, following the finding of the skeleton near National Park, and its identification by her young son-in-law, Allen Rodgers, of Woodberry, N. J., as that of his 4-year-old daughter, Dorothy.

Did Not Mean to Kill.

Using information given in her confession State Troopers Anthony T. Wilhelm and Theodore Freeman, of the Absecon, N. J., barracks found the mangled trunk of the second of Rodgers' missing children, Timothy, 2 years old, 20 feet from a much-traveled highway, near Huron and Church avenues, Absecon.

Miss Parks herself and her companion, Baker, were taken to Camden following completion of Miss Parks' confession to the Newark police. There she was arraigned before Police Judge Panocost, on a charge of murder of Dorothy, and held without bail. When the judge asked her if she would plead guilty or not guilty, she replied:

"Well, I did not intend to kill her."

The judge then entered a plea of not guilty.

After the all-day questioning of Miss Parks, Camden police said tonight she had confessed to using the children in a blackmailing scheme. They suspected her, they added, of having killed four other small children.

Four Men Told of "Game."

"Four well-known Philadelphia men and three from Atlantic City have told us of her game," said Detective Sgt. Louis Shaw. "We will not reveal their names, because the men need not be mixed up in this affair."

"She used these children and others to confront the men who were trying to black her, she would tell the men the children were theirs. The men have questioned her and given us descriptions of the children that are entirely different from the descriptions of Dorothy and Timmie Rodgers."

"We have been unable to discover what has become of those children, and we suspect that she may have done with them what she did with Dorothy and Timmie. Tomorrow we are going to question her on that angle."

Parks walked into Newark headquarters at 12:30 a. m., identified herself, and began a story about having given the children to an Atlantic City lawyer who later committed suicide.

Transatlantic Telephone to Bring Message From Gen. Pershing.

Tribute to the Americans who died during the World War under the colors of the United States will be held in several quarters of the city today as the National Capital joins the world in celebrating the eleventh anniversary of Armistice Day.

Enthusiasm for the actual observance has been aroused during the last two days by special preliminary exercises at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier. Tonight the eyes of the Nation will turn toward Washington as President Hoover speaks to the country through a radio network from the Washington Auditorium in an American Legion service. Maj. O. L. Bodenhamer, national commander of the legion, also will make a brief address.

President Hoover will first participate in the Armistice Day observance when at 11 o'clock in the morning he will place a wreath on the Unknown Soldier's Tomb. This tribute from the Chief Executive will be witnessed by Mrs. Hoover, the Secretaries of War and Navy, and high officials of both branches of the service. Mrs. Hoover will place a rose on the tomb.

A message from Gen. John J. Pershing, commander of the American forces during the war, will be transmitted to the gathering at the Washington Auditorium tonight by means of the transatlantic telephone. Amplifiers will make the talk audible to all in the hall and thousands who are expected to gather outside.

Legion Sponsors Meeting.
The meeting, expected to be the most colorful and most spectacular in the city today, is sponsored by the combined legion posts of the District of Columbia. Legion officials have been at work preparing for the event for the last several months.

Cabinet members, several hundred senators and representatives, diplomatic delegates and Army and Navy officials will attend. Invitations also have been sent to practically all newspaper correspondents in Washington.

The entire service, which will open at 8:15 o'clock and close at 9:30, will be described in detail by announcers of the National and Columbia broadcasting systems in one of the largest networks ever formed. The exercises can be heard in Washington and vicinity from stations WRC and WMA.

An audience of 15,000 can be accommodated in the park outside the auditorium, according to legion officials. The amplifiers have been erected by the Army Signal Corps.

The more than 12,000 posts of the American Legion, the 6,000 auxiliary units, and a majority of the 30,000 disabled veterans in Government hospitals over the country are expected to listen in on the program.

Second Similar Ceremony
This will be the second ceremony of its kind held by the legion. The service last year was very successful. Maj. L. E. Atkins will present Patri National Commander Paul V. McNutt, who in turn will introduce President Hoover and later Commander Bodenhamer. A musical program will be presented and the Rev. George F. Kettell, of New York, national chap-

TWO BANDITS CAPTURED

(Associated Press.)

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Two members of a gang of four robbers, who last night held up a house party at the home of Henry H. Harris, wealthy manufacturer, escaped today after Miss Ichilla Highsmith, 28, a photographer for the Supreme Court commission of Appeals died of stab wounds, one of which penetrated her heart.

A preliminary hearing for Judge Brady has been set for tomorrow in the court of Justice of the Peace F. R. Tannhill.

Miss Highsmith was cut with a knife soon after she alighted from an automobile in front of her apartment late last night. The knife was described by Sheriff Coley White as "at least 12 inches long."

Sheriff White said that Frank Graham, Jr., employed in a local music store, was the only eyewitness to the cutting. The knife was wrested from Judge Brady by F. R. McNaughton, who came from the apartment house. The sheriff said Brady sustained a cut on one of his fingers.

Miss Highsmith never spoke after she was wounded and had not regained consciousness when she died an hour later in a hospital. She had three knife wounds on her body.

Sam Dickens, Brady's attorney, appealed to the judge's friends to withhold judgment in the case until all the facts were available. Dickens said that Judge Brady had no knowledge of the tragedy nor of events immediately preceding it and was shocked when apprised of the homicide and victim from stations WRC and WMA.

lain of the legion, will deliver the invocation. The Army Band will play. The Armistice Day celebration here will open at 10 o'clock this morning with a service in honor of America's Unknown Soldier at Arlington by those clergymen who officiated at his burial, November 11, 1921. Portions of the original ceremony will be repeated. The exercises will be under the auspices of the Army and Navy chaplains.

Col. John T. Axton, former chief of the Army chaplains, and Rabbi Morris S. Lazarow, World War chaplain, will be in charge of the service. Taps will be sounded by Staff Sgt. Frank Withey, U. S. A., as a wreath is placed on the tomb.

Guard to Mass Colors.

Almost an hour later, at 10:55 o'clock, the District National Guard will hold a ceremony on the east steps of the Capitol with five units participating. The national and regimental colors will be placed in the bugle and drum corps will play appropriate airs.

The troops will enter the Capitol Grounds by way of East Capitol street, being halted just outside the plaza. They will present arms just before the colors are placed. Taps will sound exactly at 11 o'clock.

Two services in commemoration of the American Legion also will lay a wreath on the Unknown Soldier's Tomb at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. Maj. L. E. Atkins, department commander, will introduce Commander Bodenhamer, who will make a brief talk, after which Maj. Atkins' small unit will place the wreath on the tomb. The individual posts will follow with other wreaths while their colors fly. Music will be furnished by the Vincent B. Costello Post drum and bugle corps.

Representative Mothers.

Mrs. William Hamilton Bailey, of St. Louis, whose son lies buried in the American Cemetery at Surinnes, near Paris, will place a floral tribute on the tomb in honor of the American War Mothers.

National Legion Chaplain Kettell and Past Commander McMillan also will participate in the Arlington Cemetery ceremonies.

The Knights of Columbus will hold a service at the tomb at 11:45 o'clock in the morning. State Deputy William G. Peely, attended by Past State Deputy Charles W. Darr, District Deputy Fred S. Martin, Anthony J. Scullin, officers of the State council, and all of the grand knights of the five councils in this jurisdiction will place the wreath on the grave. The ceremony will be under the direction of State Warden William J. Mulligan.

D. A. R. Plans Services.

The District Daughters of the American Revolution will lay a wreath-laying services in Arlington shortly after 11 o'clock, one before the Unknown Soldier's Tomb and the other at the Spanish-American War memorial.

Mrs. David D. Caldwell, State regent, will place the floral tributes on the first memorial while Mrs. Anna G. Draper, regent of the Mary Bartlett Chapter, D. A. R., will perform the ceremony at the Unknown Soldier's Tomb. A direct descendant of Mary Bartlett.

Armistice Day will be held at the Washington Cathedral at 11 o'clock this morning in Bethlehem Chapel there will be a ceremony of prayer and thanksgiving for all of those who served in the World War. The second observance will be a special Woodrow Wilson memorial service at 8 o'clock this afternoon in front of the tomb of the War President in Bethlehem Chapel.

Bishop Freeman to Preach.

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, will be the preacher at the morning session. His topic will be "Then and Now." A special choir of ten men and twenty boys will sing.

The service will be broadcast by the Columbia system through WMAJ.

The Wilson memorial ceremony will be the culminating event of the annual pilgrimage to the War President's tomb. Bishop Freeman also will deliver the address at this service and will read certain biblical verses particularly cherished by President Wilson. Prayer will be offered by the Rev. James H. Taylor, pastor of the Rev. Presbyterian Church, which Mr. Wilson attended during his two terms of office.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, who usually attends the memorial rites, will be unable to attend today as she is traveling in the Orient. Other relatives of the former President are expected, however.

The George Washington Post of the American Legion will lay a color guard. A legion wreath will be placed on the tomb by Col. John H. Taylor, of the national legislative committee. Commander Bodenhamer will also attend.

The National Broadcasting Company will carry the service through WRC.

Wreaths for Unknown Soldier.

Directors of the Washington Chamber of Commerce will place a wreath upon the tomb of the Unknown Soldier at 11 o'clock in the morning. This ceremony, the first to be held, will be in remembrance of Washingtonians who died in the war.

The bestowal upon former Secretary of State Kellogg of the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor at the French Embassy at 4:30 o'clock will be a feature of the afternoon events. The cross will be in recognition of Kellogg's services in the cause of world peace.

Ambassador Paul Claudel will present the insignia. The decree awarding the honor was signed by President Doumergue on August 27, the first anniversary of the signing of the Kellogg peace treaty by 15 nations.

Band Over Radio.

From 7:30 to 8:30 p. m., prior to the ball, the Overseas Band will make its debut over the air from WJVS.

The Boy Scouts of the District, who Saturday held a service in Arlington, will have Linn C. Drake, Scout executive, talk at a meeting in the Nathan Club of Friendship House, 324-S Virginia avenue southeast, at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

An interesting outline of the day's program will be a contest conducted by the Army Signal Corps among the members of its amateur radio system. This will be the first national test of the huge system which has been in the course of development since 1925. Through it, Maj. Gen. George S. Gibbs, chief signal officer, expects to show that the country is thoroughly covered by active amateur operators ready to serve community, State or Nation in an emergency by furnishing reliable radio communication.

After receiving an Armistice Day message sent by Gen. Gibbs, the amateur will mail copies of his reception to the higher net control station and they will finally reach the hands of Gen. Gibbs for the compilation of an honor roll of all stations that received the message.

Greek Church Services.

Armistice Day services were conducted at the Greek Orthodox Church at Eighth and L streets northwest yesterday by the pastor, the Rev. V. Babanikas, who spoke on the meaning of the observance and to some extent on the part played by Greece in the World War.

Announcement was made that members of the church will participate in special exercises this afternoon in Arlington Cemetery at the grave of George Ribby, a Greek of Boston, Mass., who was acclaimed a hero on losing his life in the war.

An informal Armistice Day breakfast was held yesterday by the Women's Overseas Service League, at the Dodge Hotel, at which 75 members and World War overseas nurses were in attendance. Altogether 105 guests were present. Sgt. Withey, famed Army bugler, who sounded taps at the burial of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington in 1921, was present and sounded taps at the conclusion of the breakfast.

In addition to a celebration of the eleventh anniversary of the signing of the armistice, the breakfast also was held as a part of the league's drive for new members, and 20 prospective new members were among those present.

Mrs. Lena Hitchcock, past national president, and Mrs. Margaret Hood Robbins, past president of the District unit, were introduced by Miss Faustine Dennis, Washington president, and outlined the policies and work of the league.

Among those in attendance were Miss Mabel Boardman, Mrs. Vernon Kellogg, Countess de Bruyere, Maj. Julia Stinson, head of the Army Nursing Corps; Miss Beatrice Bowman, head of the Navy Nursing Corps; Miss Lucy Livingston, head of the Public Health Nursing Service; Miss Malinde Hadley, of the Red Cross Nursing Service; Mrs. Gertrude Mann, Capt. Blanche Rouillon, Miss Miriam Apple, of Hood College, Frederick, Md.; Mrs. Bruce Wallace, Mrs. Thelma Taylor, Mrs. Alfred E. Bradley, Miss Malory Church, Capt. Flickey, Mrs. Bryan K. Ogden, Mrs. B. Daniels and Mrs. John M. Waters.

Moving pictures of the annual convention of the Women's Overseas Service League were shown following the breakfast. Mrs. Herbert Hoover is honorary president of the Washington unit of the league.

The suggestion of the award was made by former Premier Brand.

Among those invited to attend the ceremony and the reception which will follow are President Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Gann, the Speaker of the House and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, Chief Justice Taft and other members of the Supreme Court with their wives, the Cabinet, the heads of the embassies of the fifteen signatory countries, the majority and minority leaders of both houses of Congress, members of the foreign relations and foreign affairs committees, the Minnesota delegation and others.

Darr's Concluding Event.

The concluding event of the day's program will be the annual Armistice Day ball at the Willard Hotel under the auspices of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. The proceeds of the dance, which will be informal and open to the public, will go to a fund for the Orphans Home at Eaton Rapids, Mich.

Numerous foreign military and naval attaches, senators and representatives, high ranking officers of the Army and Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard have accepted invitations to attend. Their various uniforms will add color to the affair.

A feature of the ball will be the trouping of massed colors of every post of the American Legion in the District by a detail of marines as the 93-piece Overseas Military Band plays.

Band Over Radio.

From 7:30 to 8:30 p. m., prior to the ball, the Overseas Band will make its debut over the air from WJVS.

The Boy Scouts of the District, who Saturday held a service in Arlington, will have Linn C. Drake, Scout executive, talk at a meeting in the Nathan Club of Friendship House, 324-S Virginia avenue southeast, at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

An interesting outline of the day's program will be a contest conducted by the Army Signal Corps among the members of its amateur radio system. This will be the first national test of the huge system which has been in the course of development since 1925. Through it, Maj. Gen. George S. Gibbs, chief signal officer, expects to show that the country is thoroughly covered by active amateur operators ready to serve community, State or Nation in an emergency by furnishing reliable radio communication.

After receiving an Armistice Day message sent by Gen. Gibbs, the amateur will mail copies of his reception to the higher net control station and they will finally reach the hands of Gen. Gibbs for the compilation of an honor roll of all stations that received the message.

Greek Church Services.

Armistice Day services were conducted at the Greek Orthodox Church at Eighth and L streets northwest yesterday by the pastor, the Rev. V. Babanikas, who spoke on the meaning of the observance and to some extent on the part played by Greece in the World War.

Announcement was made that members of the church will participate in special exercises this afternoon in Arlington Cemetery at the grave of George Ribby, a Greek of Boston, Mass., who was acclaimed a hero on losing his life in the war.

LEGION COMMANDER PLEADS FOR PEACE

Bodenhamer Recalls Deeds of American Soldiers Eleven Years Ago.

RECITES POSTWAR AIMS

Indianapolis, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—O. L. Bodenhamer, national commander of the American Legion, today issued an Armistice Day message to the people of America as follows:

"Memories of the gallant service performed by the men of America on the battlefields of France come flooding back today with an ever-increasing vividness. We turn back the pages of the past and live again with those never-to-be-forgotten moments of victory which brought unrestrained joy and gladness to the world.

"The American Legion, composed of the men who helped make possible that great achievement of eleven years ago, is today engaged in the task of preserving and perpetuating in peace those same high ideals of service which inspired our men in 1917 and 1918 to stake their lives for their country.

"Armistice Day has a peculiar significance to the men of the legion, because it not only revives cherished memories, but it serves to impress upon all veterans their duty to the Nation. A day of joy though this may be, still it strikes hard the note of loyalty which characterized the service of our men in time of war and which should characterize their service in time of peace.

"Conceived out of the common interests of those who served the spirit of the American Legion today is the desire to keep alive the noble deeds on the field of battle. The legion is justifying its existence with a program of good citizenship, with untiring devotion to the care of our disabled comrades and dependents of veterans, advancing the principles of Americanism and giving unselfish service toward the betterment of our city, State and Nation.

"Our celebration of this Armistice Day, however, would be to no avail if we do not take advantage of the splendid opportunity it affords to pledge ourselves to the Nation and country, and to reflect upon the duties and obligations which we, as citizens, owe to the Nation. The lives which were sacrificed in the hour of the World War will not have been sacrificed in vain if we dedicate our best efforts to the uplift of the Nation and to the preservation of those glorious principles of freedom and democracy for which our comrades died."

Borger Folk Ask For New Election

Petition Is Filed for Ballot on Officers to Succeed Moody Associates.

Borger, Tex., Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Borger, new city government, installed by Gov. Moody's agents after the old administration had been forced to resign, is threatened with an early election. A petition has been filed for an election to select mayor and city commissioners.

The petition bears the names of more than the required 10 per cent of the city's voters. Attorneys for the petitioners assert that Mayor A. Pace and the other city officials resigned on such short notice that a new election was justified.

The city administration resigned when Gov. Moody announced through District Attorney Clem Calhoun that martial law would not be lifted until the old administration had been replaced by one which met the approval of Calhoun. One of the promises required of those selected for the new administration was that they would not be candidates to succeed themselves.

District Attorney Calhoun and County Judge H. M. Hood declined to discuss the petition. It is understood that Calhoun will not oppose the election, provided the petitioners agree to retain the peace officers installed under the new regime.

Army Bugler Is Featured at Armistice Day Fete Event.

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE ON

An informal Armistice Day breakfast was held yesterday by the Women's Overseas Service League, at the Dodge Hotel, at which 75 members and World War overseas nurses were in attendance. Altogether 105 guests were present. Sgt. Withey, famed Army bugler, who sounded taps at the burial of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington in 1921, was present and sounded taps at the conclusion of the breakfast.

In addition to a celebration of the eleventh anniversary of the signing of the armistice, the breakfast also was held as a part of the league's drive for new members, and 20 prospective new members were among those present.

Mrs. Lena Hitchcock, past national president, and Mrs. Margaret Hood Robbins, past president of the District unit, were introduced by Miss Faustine Dennis, Washington president, and outlined the policies and work of the league.

Among those in attendance were Miss Mabel Boardman, Mrs. Vernon Kellogg, Countess de Bruyere, Maj. Julia Stinson, head of the Army Nursing Corps; Miss Beatrice Bowman, head of the Navy Nursing Corps; Miss Lucy Livingston, head of the Public Health Nursing Service; Miss Malinde Hadley, of the Red Cross Nursing Service; Mrs. Gertrude Mann, Capt. Blanche Rouillon, Miss Miriam Apple, of Hood College, Frederick, Md.; Mrs. Bruce Wallace, Mrs. Thelma Taylor, Mrs. Alfred E. Bradley, Miss Malory Church, Capt. Flickey, Mrs. Bryan K. Ogden, Mrs. B. Daniels and Mrs. John M. Waters.

Moving pictures of the annual convention of the Women's Overseas Service League were shown following the breakfast. Mrs. Herbert Hoover is honorary president of the Washington unit of the league.

The suggestion of the award was made by former Premier Brand.

Among those invited to attend the ceremony and the reception which will follow are President Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Gann, the Speaker of the House and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, Chief Justice Taft and other members of the Supreme Court with their wives, the Cabinet, the heads of the embassies of the fifteen signatory countries, the majority and minority leaders of both houses of Congress, members of the foreign relations and foreign affairs committees, the Minnesota delegation and others.

CHURCHES IN PARIS OPEN OBSERVANCE

Anniversary Covering Two Entire Days.

Pershing at Service

PEACE OFFERS REFUSED

Paris, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—The anniversary of the Armistice of the World War, no longer a merry and frolic celebration but one of meditation and prayer, this year is occupying two entire days of observance in France. It began today with solemn ceremonies in churches and cemeteries.

A special service was held in the American Cathedral with Dean Beckman officiating. Gen. John J. Pershing and Maj. Gen. William W. Harts, American Charge d'Affaires Norman Armour, practically the whole staff of the American Embassy, a delegation from the American Legion and prominent members of the American colony in Paris heard the Rev. J. W. Cochran preach at 11 a. m. on "The Peace Gains of the Decade."

Marshals at Mass.

The marshals of France were attendants at a solemn mass in the Church of St. Louis des Invalides, after which the tomb of Marshal Foch was visited. Bishop Herscher presided at the ceremony at the Sacred Heart Basilica on Montmartre, to which the American Legion sent a delegation as did the French Legion and the French War Veterans' association.

The city administration, including members of the Diplomatic Corps and high military officials. After a minutes of silence Gen. Henri Gouraud, marshal of France, presided. Then an elaborate military procession, made up of units from all military, naval and air veterans' associations, including the American Legion, will be reviewed by the president of the republic.

Gen. Pershing's Program.

Gen. Pershing tomorrow afternoon will visit the tomb of Marshal Foch. Later he will call on Foch's widow and afterward on the war-time premier, Georges Clemenceau, who so far has refused to see him. Gen. Pershing's illness that he was able to go out yesterday for a brief time.

Gen. Pershing sent a message to the French president, Raymond Poincaré, in which he expressed his desire to be read on the evening of Armistice Day and broadcast throughout the United States. Gen. Pershing heard the home on the Levean next Tuesday.

Printers' Union May Move Here

Inquiry by Typographical Secretary Is Answered by Chamber Head.

The International Typographical Union may move its headquarters from Indianapolis to Washington, it was revealed yesterday by Charles W. Darr, president of the Washington Chamber of Commerce. Answering an inquiry by Fred S. Walker, secretary of the local union, Darr in a letter outlined the advantages of such change in part as follows:

"Washington offers unique advantages as a location for the headquarters of all important national organizations. It is the national center of legislative and Government activity. It is the Nation's greatest newspaper center. Many of the headquarters offices of several hundred important national associations are located here.

"Washington is particularly suitable as a location for all organizations in any way related to the printing and allied arts and industries. This is Washington's leading group, producing annually products valued in excess of $200,000,000, not including the tremendous output of the Government Printing Office and the Bureau of Engraving, which are the largest printing plants in the world. Washington also has been responsible for many of the great inventions and changes which have helped to make the United States a high position which it occupies today."

Girl, Kraft Death Witness, Set Free

Gloria Rouzer Signs Her Testimony at Jail; Will Return.

New Orleans, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Gloria Rouzer, the "Jone Orde" of the Jack Kraft death mystery, was released from the Pointe-a-la-Hache jail today after signing a transcript of her testimony at the arraignment of John McGouldrick, steamship officer, indicted on charges of murder. She and her mother, a former socialite, left the river village immediately in an automobile. They came to New Orleans and disappeared. The girl's counsel said they were out of the State, but would return within a few days.

In leaving Pointe-a-la-Hache, the girl went with her mother and her mother's trial has been set for November 25, when authorities hope to unravel the mystery of the death of the young New Yorker aboard the steamship Orde on which he was traveling as a foster brother of Gloria Rouzer.

BRIGHT HOPES WED BY DEMOCRAT CHIEF

Republican Rifts Are Cited as Reason for Optimism in Shouse Statement.

BINGHAM ACTION 'STUPID'

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Jovett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic executive committee, today issued a statement in which he declared that "recent events, political and legislative, are full of promise for the Democratic party." He cited recent election returns, the "disastrous" situation of the Republicans, and the efforts of the Democrats in "making a respectable tariff bill" to support his statement.

"The overwhelming success of regular Democracy in Virginia was perhaps the most definite evidence of our solidarity which has yet appeared," Shouse said.

"Grave as has been our family quarrel, we are certainly matched. If not excited by the disorganization of the Republicans at this time. Not only is the historic feud between the agricultural Western and the industrial Eastern sections of the party at its peak, but the standpatists themselves are no longer united."

The statement mentioned the "stupid attempt" of Senator Bingham to work the chief lobbyist of the Connecticut Manufacturers Association into the deliberations of the finance committee.

"What the people of the United States are reacting against is the whole fabric of iniquity presented by the Shouse-Shouse."

The statement cited the elections in Indianapolis, Fort Wayne, Ind., South Bend, Evansville, Springfield, Mass. and Bridgeport, Conn., and asked why the Democratic party "has every reason to feel encouraged."

It said that every political straw indicated the "practical wiping out of the present Republican majority in the Senate by 'proportionate Democratic gains' in the next House of Representatives."

In discussing the "tariff lobby," the statement said:

"What the people think of this exhibition is bound to be reflected next year when they vote in a new Congress."

Second Plane Falls in Mediterranean

Algers-Marseille Line Passengers Are Rescued in Rough Sea.

Paris, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—For the second time within a week a seaplane on the Algers-Marseille route was in difficulty today, and the lives of the passengers were in jeopardy.

This second plane was forced down on the Mediterranean 12 miles north of Minorca, Balearic Islands, this morning. Vessels attempting to rescue the passengers and mail encountered difficult conditions with a heavy sea running.

Yesterday passengers of the first plane were landed safely after having tossed on the water in their crippled plane for several hours while relief ships searched for them. At the Bourget Flying Field today it was said that the past week had been the worst for flying in many years. The field received reports of forced landings throughout France. The Paris-London service was canceled on Friday and the Algers-Marseille service today. Two Americans were slightly injured on Friday in the forced landing of an airplane on the Brussels-Paris route.

Three Fliers Injured As Plane Hits Boat

Gloucester, Mass., Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Three Coast Guard men were injured as their amphibian plane struck the forest of the fishing schooner Jackie R., and plunged into the harbor. Caught in the wreckage the men were rescued by the crew of the schooner and a seaman who was passing in a dory. They were taken to a hospital where it was said all would recover.

The injured men are Lieut. Leonard M. Melka, pilot; William Kenney, machinist, and Arthur J. Desautels, radio electrician, all attached to Coast Guard Base No. 7 here. They were starting out on patrol duty. Coast Guard officials said the plane hit a downward air current which caused the loss of altitude.

The schooner returned to port, where inspection revealed her two masts had been cracked.

Convicted Stock Faker Being Sought by Police

New York, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—George Graham Rice, under sentence of four years imprisonment for mail fraud in connection with the sale of Idaho copper stock today was declared fugitive from justice by United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle after Federal agents had sought in vain for two days to arrest him.

The circuit court of appeals last week affirmed Rice's sentence on appeal, and yesterday the court refused to grant a stay requested by Rice's attorneys who wish to bring the case before the United States Supreme Court. Tuttle requested Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen to send a general alarm for Rice's arrest.

Former Kaiser's Sister Near Death in Illness

Berlin, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—The condition of Frau Soubock, formerly Princess Victoria von Schaumburg-Lippe and sister of the former Kaiser, was very grave tonight. The pneumonia, from which she has been suffering for several days, showed signs of spreading from the left to the right lung.

Her sister, the Landgräfin von Hessen, is at her bedside.

Opera Star Pays Bill, Gets Wardrobe Back

Chicago, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Claudio Muzio, opera singer, today was once more in possession of her extensive wardrobe and jewelry valued at $25,000.

The singer paid the Philip Barnett Jewelry Co. $8,000 to settle an account dating from 19

APPEAL MOVE LAUNCHED

Los Angeles, Nov. 10. (A.P.)—Alexander Pantages, theatrical magnate, sentenced yesterday to one to 50 years in State Prison at San Quentin for a criminal attack on Eunice Pringle, 17-year-old coed dancer, will be taken to his home under guard tomorrow to visit his sick wife, Mrs. Lois Pantages.

Pantages, immediately after his sentence, asked to be allowed to go home. Judge Charles Fricke said he would grant permission if District Attorney Fitch had no objection. Fitch said that Pantages did not intend to appeal his sentence. His case will be taken on appeal as soon as Attorney Jerry Giesler can prepare the brief. Giesler said the Appellate Court will not hand down a ruling for several months. In the meantime, the theatrical man will remain in the county jail. A writ of habeas corpus was granted by Judge Fricke automatically staying execution of judgment.

Judge Fricke pronounced sentence after denying Pantages a new trial, denying denial of judgment and refusing permission to file application for probation. Judge Fricke said in view of the nature of the crime he did not think probation should be considered.

Mrs. Pantages was placed on ten years' probation Friday when she appeared in court. She was convicted of manslaughter in connection with the death of Juro Rokumoto, a Japanese, in an automobile crash. The woman was taken to court in a wheel chair. She signed a check in court for $78,500 in settlement of damage claims, $68,500 to Mrs. Rokumoto and family and $10,000 to Mrs. Kiku Kawaguchi and her three children who were riding with Rokumoto.

They Call It Politics

By CARTER FIELD

THAT reduction, so dear to the hearts of the "ins" since Calvin Coolidge demonstrated its political efficacy, has been postponed for a year at least. Much as President Hoover would like to follow up the dismantling of the Mayflower and other spectacular economy feats by cutting the tax burdens on the American people, the budget for next year is to be only about one hundred million less than for this year. Even this may be wiped out, of course, by extra expenditures not now in contemplation.

Two months ago hope for tax reduction was very bright in the calculations of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and President Hoover. Since that time two things have happened. The first was the stock market crash, and the second was the slump in certain lines of business which normally yield big profits and therefore pay high corporate taxes (and indirectly, of course, income taxes through their stockholders). Outstanding among these is the automobile industry.

ACTUALLY the Government will promptly lose more revenue, because the last six months of this year will make a poor showing in automobile sales, and in the sales of certain other "luxuries," as Secretary of Commerce Lamont terms them, because of the much more spectacular losses in the stock market.

The stock market losses were terrific, but they were not net, so far as the tax collectors are concerned. It is pointed out that despite the crash in the market most of the stocks sold this year were sold at a profit. Big profits were realized on all stocks sold during the year up to the crash. Thousands of persons, for example, sold American Telephone on a scale up from 200 to 310, who had bought it on a scale up from 100 to 200. Those persons, if they did not lose their savings in the crash later on, will have big income taxes to pay.

All the evidence is also to the effect that most of the losses of big income taxpayers were on paper. It was the losses of the little fellows, for the most part, which will figure in the income tax returns. Losses can not be deducted from income tax statements unless they are actually taken—that is, unless the stocks were sold at figures lower than the purchase price.

HAVENNER THINKS SURPLUS ALLOWS $50,000,000 BUDGET for public works in the 1931 fiscal year approved by the House.

Expenditure of this amount, the federation leader said, will mean that the surplus at the end of the year will be approximately $50,000,000, or just about what it is at the present time.

The financial condition of the District Government, he said, justifies a budget of not less than $50,000,000 in the next fiscal year.

"Even the expenditure of $50,000,000 in 1931 will leave, according to my figuring, more than $6,000,000 as a surplus in the Federal Treasury," Havenner said.

The federation president took exception to the estimate made by Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor.

POLICE SAY WOMAN SLEW SIX CHILDREN

Jersey Prisoner Admits She Hid Bodies of Two Who Were in Her Care.

MURDER CHARGE MADE

When they were discovered a week ago today.

When told of her confession, Allen, Rodgers, in Camden, expressed the belief she had killed both, but added he knew no motive.

The body of Timothy, found near Absecon today, was only a trunk. It was discovered at 6:30 a. m. The arms, shoulders and head were missing. Troopers continued to scour the woods, and five hours later found a skull. They continued until late today looking for the skull. The torso was not covered up, and was near a thickly populated area, only 8 miles from Atlantic City. It was taken to a morgue in Absecon.

Woman Is Emotionless.

Miss Parks told her gruesome tale to the Newark police without twitching an eye or shedding a tear. Following a life story of herself, which consumed an hour, she explained she had been handicapped in marrying again with six children on her hands.

She continued with her confession, in substance, as follows:

In April, 1927, while living in Camden she heard of the death of her cousin, Oliver Rodgers. She went to see Allen, who told her of the fear he would be handicapped in marrying again with six children on her hands.

On May 31, she took Timothy and Dorothy, seven days later she moved to another house in Camden, with her father, George W. Parks. On July 3, Allen Rodgers called to see how his two children were getting along. She told him they were in Philadelphia. But they were with her in the house, and she had told him a falsehood, because she thought he wanted to get them back.

Moved by the fear he might want them, she engaged another room in Camden. She told the landlord her name was "Norcross," with the purpose of preventing Rodgers from finding her.

Dorothy Killed By Blow.

On or about August 7, Dorothy committed a childish indiscretion. Miss Parks hit her with her hand, and Dorothy fell.

Dorothy didn't move much after being hit this way, but Miss Parks thought she was fooling and left her there and went into another room. When she returned Dorothy was still on the floor.

"I lifted her up and put her to bed," Miss Parks continued. "I rubbed her with alcohol. It was then I saw Dorothy was dead. I was frightened and wanted to remove Dorothy's body before father came home."

"I carried her away and went and engaged a house at No. 216 Burns street. I gave the name of Ruth Norman, and went to 512 North Fifth street and took Dorothy's body from the bed and put it in a suitcase."

"I took it to 216 Burns street in a taxi. I then took the suitcase and put it in the rear bedroom. I then went back to 512 North Fifth street with the empty suitcase, and later my father came in."

Miss Parks continued then, in substance, as follows:

Her father played that evening with the younger child and asked where Dorothy was. Miss Parks replied she had left her with a girl friend.

Buried Body in Cellar.

She took Timothy to No. 216 Burns street, and stayed there all night, the dead body remaining meantime in the closet. Early in the morning, she entered the cellar, dug up the concrete floor, put Dorothy's body into the hole, sprinkled lye on it and covered it over again.

The body remained there three weeks. At 11 o'clock on a Friday late in August, she was upstairs in a bedroom, while Timothy sat near her.

"I knew he was dead and I would have to get away, so I went out and bought a brown suitcase," she continued. "I put Timothy's body into the suitcase and told my neighbors I was going to the shore and was taking Timothy's clothes."

Le Paradis Freed.

With the case of Le Paradis, a popular night club padlocked in the summer of 1928 for having served ginger ale, ice water and cracked ice to patrons who brought their own liquor, Rover is confident that he has a precedent which will make it possible to padlock all resorts in the District where liquor is consumed, regardless of its source.

After much litigation, Le Paradis was padlocked for a year as a public nuisance, the nuisance being not the sale of liquor, but the serving of set-ups for patrons who supplied their own liquor. This decision by the Supreme Court aroused nationwide comment because of the precedent involved, and it is believed that a repetition of such action may arouse equally strong legal opposition.

Many Suspects Held In Olive Oil Fraud

Lisbon, Nov. 10. (A.P.)—A number of persons of high rank were arrested today at the outcome of a government inquiry into charges that wholesale quantities of olive oil had been adulterated.

Police styled the adulteration "a gigantic fraud by which thousands of gallons of the product found its way into the retail trade. Large quantities of oil were seized and samples taken to a laboratory for analysis."

The authorities summarily locked up the suspects except two believed to have escaped into Spain. The commodity exchange remained closed today.

they were under strict orders to march quietly but in passing headquarters of the rival party near the National Theater place at the end of Alameda Park the trouble began.

Partisans of Pascual Ortiz Rubio, National Revolutionary party candidate, displayed his campaign picture from the roof of the headquarters. From hissing and shouting the disturbance passed quickly to shooting and brick-throwing. Nearly every window in the building was broken and it was set on fire. The firemen were impeded in their work when they arrived.

The police stated they were unable to give an accurate account of the casualties because most of those who fell were quickly carried away and cared for by their comrades. Octavio Medalla, Ocosingo, Antirevolutionary vice president candidate, telegraphed Vasconcelos that three were killed, twelve seriously wounded and many others less gravely hurt. He told his chief that despite the riot the demonstration had continued enthusiastically.

In a statement he gave out here, he stated that the riot was the result of the rivalry party to the effect that the United States Government and Ambassador Morrow favored Ortiz Rubio, in an interview given today at Chapala, near Guadalajara, said he did not expect any serious disturbance in connection with the voting next Sunday, because the army was loyal and well disciplined and able to preserve peace. If elected president, he promised to follow with regard to the United States "the most cordial policy possible, within the attitude of mutual respect."

WILLARD MANAGER CALLED IN RUM QUIZ

forces to cope with the liquor problem in Washington. The number of arrests being made daily by the District police is showing a constant increase, as a result of the activities, not only of the rum squad under Detective Sgt. Letterman, but of the precinct police as well.

Daily the various units of the police force are planning and executing raids which net everything from the half-pint vendor to the wholesale distributor of prohibited liquors who deals in carload and boatload lots. It is the latter against whom the fire of the rum raiders is directed particularly, and consequently raids and arrests of the larger operators predominate.

For several weeks the night clubs and other public rendezvous of Washington have been under surveillance, and a wholesale padlocking of such places of entertainment is believed to be imminent as the result of activities of a corps of undercover agents, both men and women, who have been making the rounds in quest of evidence of law violations.

ARLINGTON LEGION
CELEBRATES TODAYCards, Dancing and Banquet
on Program Observing
Armistice Day.

CHURCH SERVICES DRAW

ARLINGTON COUNTY,
BUREAU OF THE POST.

Tel. Clar. 508.

Conforming to the proclamation designating this as "American Legion week," Arlington Post, No. 139, American Legion, has outlined an extensive campaign to arouse among its members greater interest in the organization and to carry on an extensive campaign to enlist all former service men in the county as members of the local post.

The annual Armistice celebration will be held tonight in the Lyon Park community house at 8 o'clock. The program includes cards and dancing, followed by a banquet.

The annual service card party will be held Monday, December 2. The hour and place will be announced later.

Among other features included in the legion program for the year is the plan to foster Americanism in the schools, in connection with which a prize of $2.50 is offered to each room in various county schools, which is able to report 100 per cent success in memorizing all verses of "The Star-Spangled Banner," a poem entitled "The Flag," and "America."

St. George's Episcopal Church was filled to capacity at special Armistice Day services conducted by the pastor, the Rev. Henry Miller. The service included: "An Act of Remembrance" of those fallen or still bearing the scars of the World War; "An Act of Dedication" whereby those who remain pledged to carry on the ideals for which the fallen made their sacrifice; "An Act of Thanksgiving" for the progress toward world peace made thus far.

The flowers used in the service will be distributed today among the former service men at Walter Reed Hospital under the direction of "Mother" Steed, who was an overseas Red Cross worker in charge of the canteen at the base hospital at Dijon, France, for more than one year.

E. P. Vandewater, principal of the Washington-Lee School, announced last night that Armistice Day memorial services will be held in the school auditorium today.

For the convenience of prospective hunters who are unable to reach his office during the day, County Clerk William H. Duncan announces that his office will be open Thursday night until 9 o'clock to issue hunting licenses. The hunting season opens Friday.

The Aurora Hills Civic League will hold its monthly meeting tonight in the Community House at 8 o'clock.

The Jefferson District Fire Department will meet at 8 o'clock tomorrow night in Firemen's Hall, on Frazier avenue.

Plans are being rapidly completed for a supper to be given by the Edward Douglas White Chapter, Knights of Columbus, in the Auditorium at St. Charles School, the night of November 21.

The committee in charge of arrangements will meet tonight at the home of J. R. Mulligan, Marion avenue, Clarendon.

The newly elected officers of the Edward Douglas White Chapter, Knights of Columbus, are as follows: Grand Knight, J. R. Mulligan; deputy grand knight, T. L. Miller; chancellor, W. T. McClellan; recorder, A. A. Moore; financial secretary, B. F. Toullette; warden, J. W. Fraber; treasurer, L. W. Metzger; lecturer, M. L. Cook; inside guard, H. Bruce Schenck; outside guard, W. L. Miller; trustees, J. P. O'Connell, F. B. Brady and D. J. Sherwood; and chaplain, the Rev. Thomas F. Rankin.

The monthly business meeting of the Ashton Heights Women's Club will be held in the clubhouse tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. A full attendance is requested as many matters will come before the meeting for consideration.

The club is making plans for a card party to be given Wednesday night, November 20.

The woman's auxiliary to the Arlington Volunteer Fire Department will hold its monthly meeting Wednesday night at the home of Mrs. John Deuterman.

The first-aid class of the woman's auxiliary, Arlington Volunteer Fire Department, has changed its class instruction meetings from once a week to twice a week, effective tomorrow night. Meetings will be held Tuesday and Thursday evenings for the balance of the month. The change was made necessary in order to complete the ten-lesson Red Cross course during November.

The Leeway Citizens Association will meet tomorrow night in the Robert E. Lee Schoolhouse on the Lee highway at 8 o'clock.

Members of St. George's Episcopal Church will go to Arlington tomorrow night to join in the meeting for the celebration of the diocesan Missionary Day to be held in Christ Church.

A special health program will be the feature of the meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Thomas Nelson Page School at Ballston to be held in the school house tomorrow night.

Dr. P. M. Chichester, county health officer, will be the principal speaker.

The Rev. William H. Hodges, pastor of Mount Olivet Methodist Church, of Ballston, announces that the seventy-fifth birthday anniversary of the church will be held Sunday, November 24.

The Rev. L. B. Smith, D. D., chairman of the annual conference, will deliver the sermon.

Encouraged by the progress being made and the hearty response by the people of Cherrysdale, the special committee in charge of the drive to raise the necessary $5,000 to pay off the mortgage on the Cherrysdale Firemen's Hall will meet tomorrow night at which time a complete report of funds raised to date will be received.

The first two weeks of the drive, it is understood, has netted more than $2,000.

Colliding with an automobile operated by Carroll Randall, of Cherrysdale, on the Lee highway near Rosslyn last night, Calvin Hill, of 1671 Wisconsin avenue, Washington, suffered a scalp wound that required seven stitches after he had been taken to the Georgetown Hospital, Washington, in a passing automobile. His condition was said not to be serious, and after receiving treatment he was taken to his home.

The accident was investigated by

Soldier, AWOL, Faces
Charge of Auto Theft

Private Lawrence Mellett, 19 years old, stationed at Fort Hustis, Va., was arrested in an automobile at Twenty-second street and Bladensburg road northeast at 10 o'clock yesterday morning on charges of the theft of an automobile, driving 50 miles an hour, and failure to possess a driving permit and a registration card.

Twelfth Precinct Motorcycle Policeman E. C. Spaulding, who made the arrest after a chase, reported that the machine was stolen from George Morrison, of 1462 Clifton street northwest. The soldier told police that he was absent without leave.

ARMISTICE EVENTS
IN COUNTY SCHOOLSSpecial Exercises Will Be Held at Courthouse
in Rockville.

COURT TO OPEN TODAY

Armistice Day will be observed in Montgomery County today with various activities. The principal observance will be at Rockville, where special exercises will be held at the courthouse. Banks and many of the business houses of the county will be closed today, which is a holiday in Maryland. Exercises will be held in each of the county schools.

The exercises at Rockville will be featured by the presentation of the official roster of all county men who served in the World War by the Montgomery County committee of the Maryland War Records Commission to the county commissioners. The names of county men who died in the war and who received honors will be read. W. F. Prettyman, Rockville lawyer, will preside.

A plan to erect a memorial to the World War veterans of the county will be presented at the meeting. The only memorial now in the county is a room at the Montgomery County General Hospital at Sandy Spring, which was fitted out by the women of the county.

Members of the American Legion will be detailed to speak at exercises which will be held in each county school, one member being assigned to each school. The Maryland law requires that exercises be held on each patriotic holiday in the schools of the State.

Members of the Henderson-Smith-Edmonds Post, American Legion, last night attended in a body services which were held at the Rockville Baptist Church in observance of Armistice Day. The sermon was preached by the Rev. Bertram M. Osgood, pastor of the church, who is a native of the county referred to the day in their sermons yesterday.

The November term of the Circuit Court of Montgomery County will be opened this morning at Rockville with the opening of the grand jury. Appeals from the Justice of the Peace and Police Courts of the county will be heard Tuesday and the civil docket of 23 cases is expected to be reached by Wednesday. The criminal docket will depend upon the trial of the grand jury, but it is expected to be heavy, according to State's Attorney Robert B. Peter.

Golden, of the Department of Commerce, will talk on "Sound in the Moving Picture Theater" at a meeting of the Woman's Club tomorrow. Mrs. George Gillingham, motion picture chairman of the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs, will give the address.

A special meeting of the Bethesda Chamber of Commerce will be held Thursday night at 8 o'clock in the Bethesda Chevy Chase High School. Two special features have been arranged for the principal items of the program, to which the public is invited.

Dr. P. Parke Flournoy, of Georgetown, who resided in Bethesda more than 40 years ago, will tell the gathering of the early history of the community. The special meeting was arranged principally so that the residents of the neighborhood could have an opportunity to hear Dr. Flournoy. Another feature of interest will be the showing of the motion picture.

County Officers Carr and Carson. No arrests followed.

The Arlington County Chamber of Commerce announces that its offices are being used as headquarters for the R. L. Polk Co., who are preparing to publish a complete directory of the county within the near future.

With a corps of workers under the supervision of George Blakely, superintendent of the field force, all necessary data are now being gathered. Blakely announces all residents of the county will be listed alphabetically, with the name of wife and occupation and all members of families over the age of 18 listed, as well as the name of the subdivision in which the house is located along with post-office address.

ALEXANDRIA PLANS
RED CROSS DRIVECommittee Heads Named to Direct Campaign for Members.THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
312 E. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 323.

Miss Alice H. Whitton, chairman of the public relations committee of the local Business and Professional Women's Club and her committee members, Mrs. Reba Barrett Smith, Mrs. Evelyn S. Reynolds, Mrs. Georgia L. Cunningham, Miss Bertha Bristow and Miss Susan Fawcett, will be in charge of all branches of the work of conducting the annual Red Cross Roll call, beginning today and ending on November 26, with the expressed hope of reaching the goal of 1,500 by that date.

Supplementary members of the committee for the drive are Mrs. Helen V. Reed, Miss Bertha Allison, Miss Eleanor Watkins, Mrs. H. Noel Garner, Miss Evelyn Apperson, Miss Esther Heshelley, Miss Irma Coleman, Mrs. Harry B. Aton, Miss Evangeline Greismer, Miss Gladys Quinn and Mrs. Ota H. Hultings. These workers will arrange for solicitors in the banks and public buildings, among the club membership and also outside.

Mrs. Reba Barrett Smith and Miss Bertha Bristow will assume the house-to-house canvass, while Miss Susan Fawcett is in charge of the drive within the club membership, appointing nine team captains, who will in turn get in touch with the club members distributing the necessary cards and buttons for membership. These team captains are Miss Minnie Brock, Miss Emily May, Miss Oregon Bruce, Miss Eleanor Nugent, Miss Elizabeth Ramey, Mrs. Irma Wolf, Miss Florence A. Long, Mrs. Evelyn Reynolds and Mrs. Elizabeth Keegan.

The regular club supper meeting will be held at 7 o'clock tomorrow evening at the George Mason Hotel, with Mrs. Mary Troth presiding. Mrs. Walter Dull Brooks, of Seminary Hill, will be the guest of the club. Mrs. Brooks is an ex-member of the Massachusetts legislature.

The parishioners of St. Mary's Catholic Church will hold a four-day bazaar in the armory, beginning Wednesday and continuing through the remainder of the week, to raise funds to meet the deficit in connection with the remodeling of St. Mary's Church, which was partially destroyed by fire as the result of being struck by lightning on June 5 last.

Supper will be served each night, with Mrs. M. R. Sullivan in charge; Mrs. J. B. Eberhart and Mrs. J. H. Buckley are in charge of the country store; Miss Frances McDermott and Mrs. Cockrell, table of fancy work; Mrs. Henry Schlichting, Miss Margaret Downey and Mrs. Harper, the ice cream booth; the bingo game will be operated by Thomas J. McFarland and Francis Buckley, and the soft drinks booth will be under the direction of Herbert Cady.

The cabaret supper under the auspices of the American Legion will be given tonight in the armory, will feature the Anna Meek radio entertainers, with Bill McFarland as master of ceremonies, and music by Parker's Collegiate Orchestra. The funds derived from this benefit will be divided between the Cadaby's Tavern restoration and the auxiliary rehabilitation work.

The Kiwanis Club is arranging for its annual ladies' night celebration, to be held on Thursday at the George Mason Hotel.

The pay checks for members of Company 1, 1848 Virginia Infantry, for the quarter ended September 30 have been received and will be distributed at the drill tomorrow night.

The board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce will hold a meeting at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the chamber rooms.

Mrs. Ida Hill Hayes, wife of R. R. Hayes, of Occoquan, died yesterday at the Alexandria Hospital and the body was taken to Winchester, Pa., where she was buried.

The Romance of American Business, which is being presented through the efforts of Merle Thorpe, editor of Naton's Business and vice president of the chamber. The picture recently was completed and this is its first showing in this section. It was made for exhibition before the chambers of commerce of the United States and had only several preview showings before business men.

The committee in charge includes B. W. Parker, George P. Saxe and Capt. Chester Wells. A musical program also will be presented.

PUPILS AT FAIRFAX
OBSERVE ARMISTICEClifton School to Have Education Week; Rev.
Conner Speaks.THE FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST,
P. O. Box 248, Vienna, Va.
Phone Vienna 51.

Armistice Day will be observed in the schools of Fairfax County, as it is felt that the true meaning of this day can be taught the children better in the schoolroom than granting them a holiday. Most of the teachers have arranged special programs, and much of the day will be devoted to teaching the students the meaning of the supreme sacrifice that was made by the soldiers of this country during the World War.

In the Falls Church schools the Rev. George Conner will address the children on the observance of Armistice Day.

The Clifton school has arranged a special Armistice Day program for today. The rest of the week, education week will be observed with a home and school program tomorrow. Wednesday will be Red Cross day. A community program is planned for Thursday and a health program for Friday.

The Falls Church Volunteer Fire Department will hold its regular business meeting tonight. The financial report of the carnival, which was held last fall, that is now being prepared for the town council, will be discussed.

Miss Sarah E. Thomas, Fairfax County home demonstration agent, has announced her program for the coming week beginning with a food demonstration at Ivakota, Monday afternoon. Tuesday afternoon she will address the Home Demonstration Club. Thursday afternoon she will attend a demonstration and social that will be given by the Burke Home Demonstration Club.

The remainder of the week will be spent visiting the 4-H Clubs for special work. Tuesday morning at Oakton and in the afternoon at Vienna and McLean, Thursday morning at Lorton and at Potomac and in the afternoon; Friday morning at Annandale and in the afternoon at Colvin Run and Herndon.

The members of the Annandale Grange will observe this afternoon as Clean-Up Day at the Grange Hall and grounds. In the evening a supper will be served to the workers by the ladies.

The organization of the Sunday school at the McLean Baptist Church has been completed with W. R. Ross as superintendent; Miss Ruby Ramey, secretary and treasurer; Walter L. Mallory, teacher of the adult class; Mrs. W. L. Mallory, teacher, the girls' senior class; Mrs. C. A. Grubb, teacher of the girls' junior; Mrs. W. P. Davis and Mrs. W. R. Ross are to teach the boys' junior class and W. P. Davis, the intermediate pupils. Mrs. W. T. Kirby will teach the primary and beginners' class.

The Baptist Women's Mission Union will meet tomorrow in the church. Preceding the meeting, Mrs. R. C. Cline will serve luncheon at the home of Mrs. W. R. Ross.

The auxiliary committee of the Eastern Potomac Federation of the Baptist Young People's Union will

TAXPAYERS ARE WARNED

The Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce will hold its meeting in the Lorton School House tomorrow night. Several important questions will be taken up at this time. As the road is being worked by the force of the State highway department, persons have been advised to use the Springfield or the Richmond road in driving there.

The Fairfax Volunteer Fire Department will hold a special business meeting tonight. It is expected that the question of locating his new fire engine house will be considered.

Mrs. John Maffarity and Mrs. W. H. Thayer will be hostesses to the missionary and aid societies of the Lewinsville Presbyterian Church at its meeting tonight in Dunham Hall.

County Treasurer Frank W. Hudleston and his assistants are visiting the various sections of the county to make it possible for the taxpayers to pay their taxes without making a special trip to Fairfax. The schedule which was announced for this week begins today at Oliver's store at Ballias Crossroads. Tuesday at Carter's store in Lincolnton; Wednesday the residents of the Kenmore neighborhood will go to Oliver's store.

Thursday the treasurer will be at Storm's store in McLean; Friday at the Falls Church bank, and Saturday at the Vienna Trust Co. Persons who do not pay their tax bills on or before December 8 will be assessed a 5 per cent penalty.

The Department of Commerce will conduct examinations for radio operators' licenses at the Fairfax post-office November 19. L. C. Herndon, Federal radio supervisor, will be in charge. Applicants in and around Fairfax have been instructed to report to the postoffice at noon that day.

Hit-and-Run Driver Injures Man.

While changing a tire on his automobile parked on the main highway between Waldorf and T. B. Md., at 7:30 o'clock last night, Edward Burroughs, colored, 45 years old, of 1239 U street northwest, received a fracture of the hip and shock when he was struck by a hit-and-run motorist. He was taken in a passing machine to Providence Hospital, where his condition was reported as undetermined.

You can always start the day with a smile if you turn to the page of comics in The Washington Post. Some of America's most famous cartoon characters have their laughable adventures there every day.

THE TARDIEU VICTORY.

The Tardieu-Briand victory in the French chamber foreshadows a decided strengthening of France's foreign policy, with a view to making national security proof against international blandishments of whatsoever brand. The chamber twice voted confidence in the new government after it became apparent that a new and virile leadership had appeared.

Credit for the outcome goes to Foreign Minister Briand as well as to Premier Tardieu, both of whom made stirring patriotic appeals to the deputies. Tardieu's speech strengthened Briand and the latter ably assisted his chief. There looms the prospect of a strong foreign policy to be put into execution with the adroitness of Briand and the force of Tardieu behind it.

One controlling idea dominates the situation in France, so far as foreign policy is concerned, and the Tardieu-Briand combination promises its fulfillment. That is that France will not entertain international peace proposals which are incompatible with national security. French interests are to be judged by the new government rather than by international judges who have set up their own ideas as to what is good for France.

Thus, the date set at the reparations conference for the evacuation of the Rhineland, which is June 30 next, will be disregarded by Tardieu and Briand if they believe that French security calls for a postponement of evacuation. Tardieu will not order evacuation of the third Rhineland zone until Germany has ratified the Hague agreement and enacted legislation necessary to commercialize the reparations bonds.

According to cable reports from Paris, Premier Tardieu has taken steps to bring about postponement of the London conference on naval armaments. The time between now and the end of January is altogether too short for proper preparation, according to M. Tardieu. France, he maintains, is not ready to embark on a conference without proper preparation, and apparently he sees no reason why Mr. MacDonald should insist upon a date which satisfies his own political purposes but does not satisfy France. There is certain to be a clash of viewpoint when the British and French premiers endeavor to reach an understanding as to the purposes of the London naval conference, especially as M. Tardieu is not willing to enter into any binding agreement until the League of Nations disposes of the question of naval and land armaments.

DOUBLE TAXATION BY NATIONS.

The conference in Paris which is attempting to work out an international agreement on treatment of foreigners in all countries has brought forward the question of double taxation. A special committee is trying to formulate a provision which would preclude taxation of the same earnings by two different governments but it is meeting with opposition from the French delegation, which contends that this question should be dealt with in bilateral treaties. The Italian, Swiss and Czechoslovakian delegations are supporting that view.

Double taxation is a highly important issue at present in view of the new French law imposing a heavy tax burden on French subsidiaries of foreign corporations. American capital, amounting to millions of dollars, is menaced by this law. A recent dispatch stated that unless the United States Government is able to bring about a radical alteration of the French statute, American companies will probably be forced to close their branch establishments and operate solely through French agents. One lawyer representing American interests in the controversy estimates that this double taxation will cost Americans doing business in France $10,000,000. The figure will no doubt run still higher if French tax authorities apply the law retroactively as they propose to do.

Business concerns operating in France pay an initial tax of 18 per cent on their profits.

In addition to this, the new law taxes the dividends of French subsidiaries and their parent companies situated in other nations. As a result American subsidiaries face the necessity of paying more than 33 per cent of their total profits in taxes. Legality of the tax has been challenged by both American and Swiss corporations. The lower courts have sustained the French tax officials and appeals to the Supreme Court of France are now pending.

Various other governments have protested against a tax of this nature, but the interests concerned are looking to the State Department for action because of the extensive American commercial interests in France. The need for relief is of sufficient urgency to demand attention without waiting for conclusion of a general commercial treaty. Since the French are contending at the Paris conference that the matter should be settled in bilateral treaties, that government should not be averse to immediate negotiations on the subject.

EFFICIENCY AND LIBERTY.

Andre Siegfried, French political scientist, finds efficiency incompatible with human liberty. In his address at Johns Hopkins University he contrasted what he termed the American conception of ideal government with French political theory. "Here," he said, "you want a government that will increase your creature comforts; we want a government that sets us intellectually and politically free." He intimated that if one prefers automobiles and modern conveniences he will subscribe to the American ideal, but if he wants to lead his own life according to his own best judgment, he will turn to the philosophy of the French revolution. The French would rather have poor telephone service and slow trains than become a nation of automatons.

It must be admitted that the argument is an attractive one as long as M. Siegfried stays within the realm of theory. Reports of his address indicate that he elected not to descend to a practical consideration of the problem he presented. His discussion raises the question: what is freedom? Is the workman who is ground down by toil, who has no time or means for education or culture, to be considered free? Obviously, political freedom is worthless if a person has no time to participate in civic affairs. How can a person be free to live his life as he desires, if the earning of meager living for his family occupies his full attention?

The United States has subscribed to the doctrine of efficiency for the very reason that it frees human beings from the drudgery of older civilizations. The American conception of freedom is practical as well as idealistic. Workmen have increased their productivity and multiplied the comforts of living. Consequently they have more leisure, more money for recreation, education, and a greater inclination to pursue the intellectual freedom of which M. Siegfried speaks.

THE NORTHWEST PASSAGE.

Reports from Montreal indicate that for the first time in history communication between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans has been established by a natural water route across North America. Historians are fond of recalling that Columbus set out to find a western route to India. For centuries after his discovery of America search was made for the mythical Northwest Passage through the new continent. Hudson's discovery of the river and bay that bear his name stimulated the search, and it has never been finally abandoned. News that the Northwest passage has at last been forced is now of no practical importance. It is indeed a belated victory for the Hudson Bay Co.

Even yet no boat has made a continuous passage by this route from the Atlantic to the Pacific. One boat from the East and one from the West came near enough to one another in the labyrinth of islands between Canada and the North Pole, to enable a motor schooner to establish communication between them. The more difficult trip from the East was made by the Fort James by way of Davis Strait, which separates the mainland from Greenland. The Fort James cruised through Baffin Bay and Lancaster Sound to Somerset Island, thence through Peel Sound and Franklin Strait to the magnetic North Pole on Boothia Peninsula. The crew spent last winter in this vicinity, intending to continue west last summer. But the vessel was driven ashore and its rudder damaged. Before repairs could be made the Fort James was again icebound.

From the West the trip was made through Bering Strait and the Arctic Ocean to Cambridge Bay. This boat, the Baychimo, left Vancouver last summer. Communication between the one vessel at Cambridge Bay and the other at Boothia Peninsula was made by the schooner Fort MacPherson, a supply boat of the Hudson Bay Co. which cruises continuously about in Arctic waters. Next year the Fort James is expected to complete its own conquest of the Northwest Passage. The Hudson Bay Co. will thereby achieve one of the principal objectives of its charter granted in 1870 by King Charles II.

Navigation of this ice-bound route is, of course, of no commercial interest. Construction of an artificial waterway across the isthmus of Panama fulfilled the dream of explorers that ships might some day pass from the Atlantic to the Pacific without rounding the Horn. But the termination of a quest which has influenced American history for centuries should not pass without notice.

OLD AGE RELIEF.

Statements by Representatives Kelly and Kopp—the latter is chairman of the House committee on labor—indicate that the question of old age pensions will be brought before Congress at the regular session. Mr. Kelly is of the opinion that Congress should authorize surveys of the entire question of social insurance with a special view to determining whether legislation should be sought through the State or Federal Government. Mr. Kopp has indicated that this angle of the question will be taken up by the committee on labor.

Six different proposals concerning old age compensation are already on the calendars of the Senate and House. The reason why Congress has not acted on them is because of the prevailing opinion that old age pensions are a responsibility of the States rather than the Federal Government. A few of the States have acted on the subject, but many seem to be hesitating in the hope that the Government will assume their responsibility.

It is worthy of note that the United States is lagging behind Canada in the care of aged indigent persons. The Canadian Parliament enacted a measure providing that the provinces may adopt old age pension systems, and this year these benefits will be extended to thousands of senile individuals whose children or relatives are not in a position to take care of them. The wisdom of replacing poorhouses by this plan is obvious.

While the Federal Government can not properly invade the realm of State authority to provide compensation for the aged, there can be no objection to the adoption of a Federal policy that will stimulate action by the States. At present State legislatures are at a disadvantage because the subject is pending in Congress. Once a definite Federal policy is adopted the more progressive States will formulate programs of their own to provide for their aged. Congress may see fit to extend some aid or guidance to the States on this problem, as has been done in many similar cases, but a definite policy should be adopted as soon as practicable.

AUTOMATIC FLYING.

Two weeks or so ago a commercial attaché stationed in Germany forwarded a report having to do with the invention and successful demonstration of a "robot" pilot for airplanes. His report, it seems probable, led to the demonstration before it was finally perfected of a similar device, made by Americans, in a flight from Dayton to Washington. The American device is the product of the Sperry laboratories, where it has been in process of development for eighteen years. It functions on the gyroscopic principle and, once set, keeps a plane flying on an even keel on a straight line for hours on end.

The importance of the Sperry gyroscopic pilot lies in the fact that it is as fool-proof as any mechanical device can be, and that its use will relieve pilots of the strain of unceasing attention to the controls. Unlike any other conveyance, the airplane will not run along of itself unless it is under constant control. The automobile requires concentrated attention only when its direction is to be changed. A surface vessel will remain aloft whether a helmsman is at the wheel or not. But the airplane must have its control stick and rudder bars under pressure at all times, and in the past the pilot has had to be at constant attention.

The Sperry gyroscopic pilot will enable the pilot, once he has taken the plane off the ground and set in on its course, to relax his vigilance over the controls and center his attention on the instrument board, maps, and on the taking of observations. It will make him master of his machine, whereas heretofore he has been an integral part of it. Perfection of the gyroscopic pilot constitutes one of the most important advances ever made in aeronautics.

German scientists claim to have proved that ground glass taken into the digestive system does not cause death. Picnicking, olive-eaters will be reassured.

PACKAGE TRADE IN SPEECH.

From the New York Herald Tribune.

The metaphor of "canned" speech or music for a phonograph is old and familiar, but noteworthy improvements continue to be made in this branch of the canning industry. The talking "movie" is one of them, although even the friends of this mode of entertainment might be inclined to admit, we fancy, that the average run of the product is not up to the "extra fancy" designation of the businesses in canned peaches or canned tomatoes. In the laboratories of electro-acoustics still other lines of package goods in speech and music are in preparation. Sounds are embalmed in disks, in strips of film, in metal sheets, in iron wires and other containers. Musical tones are manufactured synthetically. Speech is turned inside out and upside down; slowed and speeded, almost without limit. The latest of these accomplishments Mr. Sergius P. Grace, of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, has been demonstrating this week at the Engineering Auditorium, samples of canned voice from an Irish telephone girl.

The dial telephone has seemed to many of us a soulless and unemotional contrivance, for all the greater speed and fewer wrong numbers which most experienced dial subscribers will be willing to grant it. Now it is to be hitched, Mr. Grace disclosed, to Irish femininity. Not that the Irishness matters much, nor even the femininity. The young lady selected to supply this newest variety of canned words happens merely to be one of the best pronouncers of "one" to "ye-en" that the telephone company possesses. Ordinary dial telephones communicate their signals to machines, which proceed to select the necessary wires and call the desired subscriber to his telephone. Some exchanges, however, still are operated by telephone girls. For these the dial system sets up luminous numbers or other signals which the girl can read and from which she knows what line the incoming call desires. The new device, instead of light signals, sets up in a receiving office records of spoken words, like a strip of talking "movie" film. This is then "played" electrically into the ear of the human operator, so that the distant dial controls a near-by voice—the spoken and canned number-words, in fact, of the Irish girl who was found to speak them best. Like a grocer reaching for peaches or peas, the system takes down from the shelf whatever series of canned words the dial numbers ask to have heard.

One great task awaits the manipulators of speech sounds: The automatic conversion of printed type or of typewriting into spoken words, so that the blind, for example, could read books aloud to themselves. Probably this could be accomplished now were spoken English a little more regular and were the forms of our printed letters suitable to our own speech instead of being an heirloom from the Latin language, long gone to well earned rest. Even the difficulties of translating automatically a set of unsuitable letters into a complicated and partially suggested speech are perhaps not too great for the abilities of the modern speech-cannermen whom Mr. Grace represents.

PRESS COMMENT.

Give Good Instructions.

Paris Mercury: Strong-minded wives make the best husbands.

Sagacity in Reverse.

Dallas News: The Russian liars show sagacity in flying 12,500 miles from Russia. But we don't know so much about flying back.

Something to Worry About.

Chicago News: What may add to distress is the possibility that independent dealers may be caught with unsalable stocks of knee-length grass skirts.

Cincinnati Enquirer: If skirts come down far enough it will mean that the girl with the pretty foot will smile again and quit envying the one with the dimpled knee.

Old, Old Question.

New York Post: Virginia ministers are trying to decide whether they will grant themselves the right to smoke. It seems to be a case of the old question, "Shall we join the ladies?"

At Least the Rhetoric.

Philadelphia Inquirer: There is reason for believing that if the move to dry up Washington is to be successful, it should start in the legislative chambers of the Capitol, and that remark, if you wish, may be construed to include both rum and rhetoric.

BRING ON THE FADS.

Bring on your fads, gentlemen, for Mr. and Mrs. are crying for a new craze. The appetite for novelties is easily wearied and must have a new sauce, says the Worcester Telegram. A fortune awaits the man who has up his sleeve the next fad for the relief of a winter's tedium.

Here are the facts. The crest of the crossword puzzle craze has broken into foam, although there are still many people interested in word puzzles, just as there were enthusiasts long before the storm broke. Mah Jongg enjoyed a little brief authority just prior to the coming of the Children of Ur. Today this imported pastime joins the pyrographic outfit in the attic of forgotten things. Bridge whist holds the fort although contract bridge is drawing up its forces for attack. Whether the popularity of either game will ever wane remains to be seen. Euchre had its day and ceased to be.

But for people by and large who don't know how to entertain an evening, a new fad is needed and at once. It must be simple and inexpensive and not so highbrow as to become known as a hobby. The thanks of the multitude await the man who can think up the next one. And not a few dollars.

PEACE OFFERINGS.

It's been this way with him and me. We've had our spats as most folks do. But when I'd get to thinkin' he was 'bout the meanest man I knew An' wish we had never met He'd bring home something nice, an' then His foolish temper I'd forget An' go to lovin' him again. It's always happened! Sure as fate When I was angry as could be An' piling up a lot of hate He'd do some thoughtful thing for me. When I'd about made up my mind That life with him I couldn't stand, That night when he'd come home I'd find A box of candy in his hand. He has his faults an' so have I, But forty years we've stuck it out. Somehow the twinkle in the eye Has always driven away the pout. Something to me he'd always bring Which he had seen along the way To serve as a peace offering And I'd decide with him to stay. (Copyright, 1920.)

A Wolf That Eats Rabbits Seems Hateful to Rabbits, But Not to Wolves.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

SOME weeks ago a bank in my section was embarrassed by a "run." Some irresponsible rumor frightened depositors and within a few hours they crowded the lobby of the bank and blocked traffic in front of it.

Among them, indoors and out, moved officials of the bank, unhurried and unruffled, giving assurance that all would be paid. The bank was solvent; other banks in town had come to its rescue; everybody who desired his money could get it.

The heavier depositors—business men accustomed to banks and bankers—accepted these assurances and left their money undisturbed. The smaller depositors grimly kept their places in line and relaxed no whit of their fear and suspicion until they got what was theirs.

The difference in the conduct of the two groups may have been due in some measure to the fact that the poor have desperate need of their little and dare not lose it, while business men, accustomed to losses, and aware that a bank's failure injures an entire community, can afford to run some risk to save fellow business men.

But the greater part of the difference is explained by the fact that the big depositors were dealing with their own kind, who talked their language. They had faith in the word of their own class.

This trait of human nature—the yoke of the suspicion of the city slicker—class faith in class—man's eagerness to suspect the worst of his betters—should enable each individual to determine his own rank in the community and to discover his superiors.

Whether you are celebrated or obscure, idle tongues discuss you. And since slander is more interesting than praise, some of the discussion will be vicious. Everybody is gossiped about by somebody.

If you rank high, the high reject and disbelieve any evil spoken concerning you, while the low accept it as truth and rejoice in it. If you rank low, the low believe you innocent and the high think you guilty as charged.

We accept the word of our own kind. We suspect those we envy or fear. Thus the reactionary would hang without trial the radical accused of throwing a bomb, and the illiterate shouts "Persecution!" when one of his kind is jailed for burning a palace.

While none but the low accuse you, there is nothing to fear. None but the low will believe, and their belief doesn't matter. Or if none but the higher-up bring charges, your reputation is safe with those whose good opinion is essential to your happiness.

But when your own kind speak evil concerning you, your own kind believe it—and as a rule they are justified. When a skunk of friends other skunks, his odor is bad indeed.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

ELMER TWITCHELL IN WASHINGTON FLASK PROBE.

Mr. Elmer Twitchell admitted today that he was among those present at the silver flask dinner given to United States senators two years ago. He was immediately summoned before the District of Columbia grand jury and questioned. The verbatim report of his examination follows:

Q. Mr. Twitchell, were you at the dinner in question?

A. If I wasn't, it must have been a big mistake.

Q. Did you see any silver flasks there?

A. I never saw so many at one time. Why, the place looked like a gent's furnishing store window during the Christmas shopping season.

Q. Where were these silver flasks?

A. They were under each chair.

Q. Did the flasks contain liquor?

A. If they didn't, I've been badly fooled.

Q. What was the idea of having liquor at each plate like that?

A. Only a few senators liked oysters and none of them cared for soup.

Q. Do you know who put the flasks under the chairs?

A. No, sir.

Q. Weren't you curious to know?

A. No. If I had found a man under the chair and no flask I would have been curious, but finding a flask and no man was okay.

Q. When you saw all those silver flasks, what did you think?

A. My first thought was that I was at a major football game between the halves. When there was no cheering I realized it wasn't a football game.

Q. Did you know it was a gathering of senators?

A. Not at first.

Q. When did you realize they were United States senators?

A. When I noticed they were all very busy investigating.

Q. What were they investigating?

A. They were investigating the flasks.

Q. How far did the investigation progress?

A. All I know is that they brought in no unfavorable report.

Q. Did anybody present show any resentment that a silver flask had been found at his place?

A. Only one.

Q. Why was that?

A. He expected a case of Scotch.

Q. Now, Mr. Twitchell, one more question. Was the liquor in these flasks good or bad?

A. You can use your own judgment.

Q. But what will I base it on?

A. On the fact it took two years for anybody to complain.

FORETHOUGHT.

The horse show opened last week at Madison Square Garden and there is a story going the rounds that it is being held early this season so that some of the city's financiers can participate while they still own a horse.

President Hoover has apologized to Hiram Johnson, saying that it was through an oversight that he was not invited to the Daves-Guggenheim dinner. But it's no compliment to a man to say you didn't miss him at the dinner until you read the next day's papers.

IT SEEMED THAT WAY.

"I know what's the trouble," piped the drowning man as he went under for the third time.

"What?" cried a spectator.

"I'm getting pool support," he replied, disappearing.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Romance and Trials of Gen. William C. Gorgas and His Devoted Wife, Who Died Last Week.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Marie Doughty Gorgas, widow of Maj. Gen. William C. Gorgas, the great sanitarian, who died in this city on Friday, was a woman of rare personal charm, of quick understanding, and so gifted by nature that she was able through the long years to be in his highest sense a helpmate to her husband in all his humanitarian endeavors.

Probably there was no woman in Washington who had more closely knit friendships than Mrs. Gorgas. Socially and in all beneficent works she was prominent. She gave of her service willingly and unstintingly, as her husband in his lifetime gave his for the betterment of the conditions of life in all its walks.

There perhaps is no more dramatic life story than that of Gen. and Mrs. Gorgas. There was romance in it, but a romance of such direct connection with one of the great life of life that perhaps the word by some may be thought misplaced.

In the year 1884, Mrs. Gorgas, then Miss Doughty, was visiting her sister, Mrs. Lyster, whose husband, an Army officer, was stationed near Brownsville, Tex. While at the gathering there was an epidemic of yellow fever and many of the soldiers and civilians at the post were stricken. Miss Doughty was among the first to be taken with the disease.

At the post as a lieutenant of the Medical Corps was stationed William C. Gorgas. It was he who attended Miss Doughty in her illness. It seemed certain that she must die. There was no chaplain and one of the duties of the medical officer was to read the burial service over those who died. It was fully expected that he must perform this duty for Miss Doughty. Unexpectedly, however, she recovered. Shortly afterward Lieut. Gorgas was stricken with the disease and Miss Doughty, who had become his wife, was his nurse.

The experience at Brownsville in those days turned the attention of Dr. Gorgas to the necessity of studying yellow fever with an attempt to discover its cause. His name afterward became inseparable from the story of the constant struggle to overcome yellow fever. In all that he did Mrs. Gorgas was his sympathetic and faithful encourager and supporter.

When Gen. Gorgas performed his great task of driving yellow fever from Havana and making it forever immune from the disease, his wife was with him. She was with him in Panama when through his efforts a pesthole was turned into one of the most healthful spots of the world. She was with him when he was dying in a London hospital at the time when King George went to the bedside to give him the insignia of the Order of St. Michael and St. George for his high services to humanity.

The life of William Crawford Gorgas was written by his wife. It is a compelling story, sympathetically told, and with a strong human appeal. No one but a wife of the deepest understanding, a fellow laborer, could have written so human a document.

Mrs. Gorgas was a worker in many organizations intended to benefit mankind and womankind. The appeal of her charm and marked individuality drew to her thousands of friends. She lived to see her husband honored beyond most men. Honor is due him for a work which she shared in his high achievement.

"A Strap for Every Hanger" Is an Ideal Hoped for But Not Expected.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Some time since a prominent citizen of the Mount Pleasant section had a communication in The Post protesting about the overcrowding in cars of the Mount Pleasant branch of the W. & O. Co. Permit me to add a few words to his protest.

Not during rush hours, when much overcrowding is necessary, but between times all through the day, it is unnecessarily in evidence. This is especially so during the afternoon shopping-movie hours, going and coming.

I am a frequent traveler on the Mount Pleasant line, and even in the forenoon, as early as 10 o'clock on a way down town, I am more frequently than not forced to hang by a strap or cling to a seat before Dupont Circle is reached, owing, it is true, to the fact that I am still old-fashioned enough to yield my place to a good-looking woman. The traffic at that time mostly consists of feminine shoppers.

Conditions aboard the cars during the afternoon are sometimes absolutely awful. Passengers, without regard to race, color or previous condition, are packed like sardines in a box, and the mixed metaphor goes, although it does not half begin to compare with the mix-up it is intended to describe.

In respect to roadbed and equipment and valuations and other matters, there is evidence of expert management in the operation of the street railway. Yet still the "fuller" signs never hung out, no matter how greatly the strap-hangers may outnumber the straps. At least, it looks as if the utilities commission would not be oversteering a point if it required the railway to consider the simple objective of a strap for every hanger.

To suggest that the street railway efficiency experts study the problem of a noncrowded street car, is of course, looking too far ahead for our present purpose.

Private Allen in No Need of Sympathy—He Will Do Well Where Teamwork Does Not Count.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Referring to the Robert J. Allen case, which is the first essential in a body of law-enforcement officers, could not be maintained with such an individual on the force?

Right you are, W. O. F. As a police private I suppose Allen is what you would call a square-jawed-around-hole guy. But I don't think he is much in need of our sympathy. What is it that you are so anxious to be easy for him to find employment where his kind of a live wire is so much wanted and where teamwork doesn't count?

CURRENT EVENTS IN VIRGINIA AND MARYLAND

ARLINGTON LEGION
CELEBRATES TODAYCards, Dancing and Banquet
on Program Observing
Armistice Day.

CHURCH SERVICES DRAW

ARLINGTON COUNTY,
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Cl. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Conforming to the proclamation designating this as "American Legion week," Arlington Post No. 139, American Legion, has outlined an extensive campaign to arouse among its members greater interest in the organization and to carry on an extensive campaign to enlist all former service men in the county as members of the local post.

The annual Armistice celebration will be held tonight in the Lyon Park community house at 8 o'clock. The program includes cards and dancing, followed by a banquet.

The annual service card party will be held Monday, December 2. The hour and place will be announced later.

Among other features included in the program for the year is the plan to foster Americanism in the schools, in connection with which a prize of $2.50 is offered to each room in various county schools, which is able to report 100 per cent success in memorizing all verses of "The Star-Spangled Banner," a poem entitled "The Flag," and "America."

St. George's Episcopal Church was filled to capacity at special Armistice Day services conducted by the pastor, the Rev. Henry Miller. The service included: "An Act of Remembrance" of those fallen or still bearing the scars of the World War; "An Act of Dedication," whereby those who remain pledge to carry on the high ideals for which the fallen made their sacrifice; "An Act of Thanksgiving" for the progress toward world peace made thus far.

The flowers used in the service will be distributed today among the former service men at Walter Reed Hospital under the direction of "Mother" Steed, who was an overseas Red Cross worker in charge of the canteen at the base hospital at Dijon, France, for more than one year.

S. P. Vandenberg, principal of the Washington-Lee High School, announced last night that Armistice Day memorial services will be held in the school auditorium today.

For the convenience of prospective hunters who are unable to reach his office during the day, County Clerk William H. Dunne announces that his office will be open Thursday night until 9 o'clock to issue hunting licenses. The hunting season opens Friday.

The Aurora Hills Civic League will hold its monthly meeting tonight in the Community House at 8 o'clock.

The Jefferson District Fire Department will meet at 8 o'clock tomorrow night in Firemen's Hall, on Frazier avenue.

Plans are being rapidly completed for a supper to be given by the Edward Douglas White Chapter, Knights of Columbus, in the Auditorium at St. Charles School, the night of November 21.

The committee in charge of arrangements will meet tonight at the home of J. R. Mulligan, Marion avenue, Clarendon.

The newly elected officers of the Edward Douglas White Council, Knights of Columbus, are as follows: Grand knight, J. R. Mulligan; deputy grand knight, T. L. Miller; chancellor, W. T. McClinton; recorder, A. A. Moore; financial secretary, B. F. Truitt; warden, J. W. Fraber; treasurer, L. W. Metzger; lecturer, M. L. Cook; inside guard, H. Drakenmiller; outside guard, W. L. Miller; trustees, J. P. O'Connell, F. B. Brady and D. J. Sherwood; and chaplain, the Rev. Thomas F. Rankin.

The monthly business meeting of the Ashton Heights Woman's Club will be held in the clubhouse tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. A full attendance is requested, as many matters will come before the meeting for consideration.

The club is making plans for a card party to be given Wednesday night, November 20.

The woman's auxiliary to the Arlington Volunteer Fire Department will hold its monthly meeting Wednesday night at the home of Mrs. John Deuterman.

The first-aid class of the woman's auxiliary, Arlington Volunteer Fire Department, has changed its class instruction meetings from once a week to twice a week, effective tomorrow night. Meetings will be held Tuesday and Wednesday evenings for the balance of the month. The change was made necessary in order to complete the ten-lesson Red Cross course during November.

The Leeway Citizens Association will meet tomorrow night in the Robert E. Lee Schoolhouse on the Lee highway at 8 o'clock.

Members of St. George's Episcopal Church will go to Alexandria tomorrow night to join in the meeting for the celebration of the diocesan Missionary Day to be held in Christ Church.

A special health program will be the feature of the meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Thomas Nelson Page School at Ballston, to be held in the school house tomorrow night.

Dr. P. M. Chichester, county health officer, will be the principal speaker.

The Rev. William H. Hodges, pastor of Mount Olivet Methodist Church, of Ballston, announces that the seventy-fifth birthday anniversary of the church will be held Sunday, November 24.

The Rev. L. B. Smith, D. D., chairman of the annual conference, will deliver the sermon.

Encouraged by the progress being made and the hearty response by the people of Cherrylee, the special committee in charge of the drive to raise the necessary $5,000 to pay off the mortgage on the Cherrylee Firemen's Hall will meet tomorrow night at which time a complete report of funds raised to date will be received.

The first two weeks of the drive, it is understood, has netted more than $2,000.

Colliding with an automobile operated by Carroll Randall, of Cherrylee, on the Lee highway near Rose, last night Calvin Hill, of 1871 Wisconsin avenue, Washington, suffered a scalp wound that required seven stitches after he had been taken to the Georgetown Hospital, Washington, in a passing automobile. His condition was said not to be serious, and after receiving treatment he was taken to his home.

The accident was investigated by

Soldier, AWOL, Faces
Charge of Auto Theft

Private Lawrence Mellett, 19 years old, stationed at Fort Huxley, Va., was arrested in an automobile at Twenty-second street and Bladenburg road northeast at 10 o'clock yesterday morning on charges of the theft of an automobile, driving 50 miles an hour and failure to possess a driving permit and a registration card.

Twelfth Precinct Motorcycle Policeman E. C. Spaulding, who made the arrest, was reported that the machine was stolen from George Morrison, of 1462 Clifton street northwest. The soldier told police that he was absent without leave.

ARMISTICE EVENTS
IN COUNTY SCHOOLSSpecial Exercises Will Be Held at Courthouse
in Rockville.

COURT TO OPEN TODAY

Armistice Day will be observed in Montgomery County today with varied activities. The principal observance will be at Rockville, where special exercises will be held at the courthouse. Barks and many of the business houses of the county will be closed today, which is a holiday in Maryland. Exercises will be held in each of the county schools.

The exercises at Rockville will be featured by the presentation of the official roster of all county men who served in the World War by the Montgomery County committee of the Maryland War Records Commission to the county commissioners. The names of county men who died in the war and who received honors will be read. W. P. Prettyman, Rockville lawyer, will preside.

A plan to erect a memorial to the World War veterans of the county will be presented at the meeting. The only memorial now in the county is a room at the Montgomery County General Hospital at Sandy Spring, which was fitted out by the women of the county.

A member of the American Legion will be detailed to speak at exercises which will be held in each county school, one member being assigned to each school. The Maryland law requires that exercises be held on each patriotic holiday in the schools of the State.

Members of the Henderson-Smith-Edmonds Post, American Legion, last night attended in a body services which were held at the Rockville Baptist Church in observance of Armistice Day. The sermon was preached by the Rev. Bertram M. Osgood, pastor of the church. Most of the pastors of the county referred to the day in their sermons yesterday.

The November term of the Circuit Court of Montgomery County will be opened this morning at Rockville with the return of the grand jury and petit jury for the term.

Appeals from the Justice of the Peace and Police Courts of the county will be heard Tuesday and the civil docket of 23 cases is expected to be reached by Wednesday. The criminal docket will depend upon the indictments returned by the grand jury, but it is expected to be heavy, according to State's Attorney Robert B. Peter, Jr.

A. D. Golden, of the Department of Commerce, will talk on "Sound in the Moving Picture Theater" at the meeting of the Woman's Club tomorrow. Mrs. George Gillingham, motion picture chairman of the District of Columbia Federation of Woman's Clubs, will talk on "Curtain Book Film Release." Mrs. Gilbert H. Grosvenor, president of the club, will preside.

A special meeting of the Bethesda Chamber of Commerce will be held Thursday night at 8 o'clock in the Bethesda-Cherry Chase High School. Two special features have been arranged for the principal items of the program, to which the public is invited.

Dr. P. Parker Flournoy, of Georgetown, who resided in Bethesda more than 50 years ago, will tell the gathering of the early history of the community. The special meeting was arranged principally so that the residents of the neighborhood could have an opportunity to hear Dr. Flournoy.

Another feature of interest will be the showing of the motion picture, County Officers Carr and Carson. No arrests followed.

The Arlington County Chamber of Commerce announces that its offices at the big new headquarters by the R. L. Polk Co. who are preparing to publish a complete directory of the county within the near future.

With a corps of workers under the supervision of George Skeley, superintendent of the field force, all necessary data are now being gathered. Blakely and all residents of the county will be listed alphabetically, with the name of wife and occupation and all members of families over the age of 16 listed, as well as the name of the subdivision in which the house is located along with post-office address.

Armistice Day will be observed in the schools of Fairfax County, as it is felt that the true meaning of this day can be taught the children better in the schoolroom than granting them a holiday. Most of the teachers have arranged special programs, and much of the day will be devoted to teaching the students the meaning of the supreme sacrifice that was made by the soldiers of this country during the World War.

In the Falls Church schools the Rev. George Connor will address the children on the observance of Armistice Day.

The Clifton school has arranged a special Armistice Day program for today. The rest of the week, education week will be observed with a home and school program tomorrow. Wednesday will be Red Cross day. A community program is planned for Thursday and a health program for Friday.

The Falls Church Volunteer Fire Department will hold its regular business meeting tonight. The financial report of the carnival, which was held within the club membership, will be discussed.

Miss Sarah E. Thomas, Fairfax County home demonstration agent, has announced her program for the coming week beginning with a food demonstration at Ivakota, Monday afternoon Tuesday afternoon she will address the Florio Home Demonstration Club. Thursday afternoon she will attend a demonstration and social that will be given by the Burke Home Demonstration Club.

The remainder of the week will be spent visiting the 4-H Clubs for special work. Tuesday morning at Lee-Jackson school, Wednesday at Oakton and in the afternoon at Vienna and McLean. Thursday morning at Lorton and at Potomac Hill in the afternoon. Friday morning at Annandale, and in the afternoon at Colvin Run and Herndon.

The members of the Annandale Grange will observe this afternoon as Clean-Up Day at the Grange Hall and grounds. In the evening a supper will be served to the workers by the ladies.

The Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce will hold its meeting in the Lorton School House tomorrow night. Several important questions will be taken up at this time. As the road is being worked by the forces of the State highway department, persons have been advised to use the Springfield or the Richmond road in driving there.

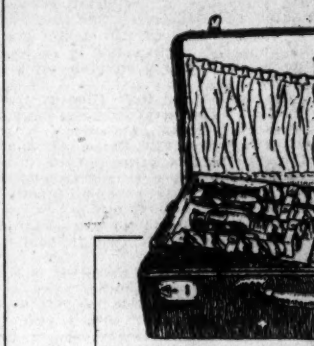

The Fairfax Volunteer Fire Department will hold a special business meeting tonight. It is expected that the question of locating the new fire engine house will be considered.

Mrs. John Maffarity and Mrs. W. H. Thayer will be hostesses to the missionary and aid societies of the Falls Church bank, and Saturday at the Vienna Trust Co. Persons who do not pay their tax bills on or before December 5 will be assessed a 5 per cent penalty.

The Department of Commerce will conduct examinations for radio operators' licenses at the Fairfax post-office November 19. L. C. Herndon, Federal radio supervisor, will be in charge. Applicants in and around Fairfax have been instructed to report to the postoffice at noon that day.

Hit-and-Run Driver Injures Man. While changing a tire on his automobile parked on the main highway between Waldorf and T. B. Md., at 7:30 o'clock last night, Edward Burroughs, colored, 45 years old, of 1239 U street northwest, received a fracture of the hip and shock when he was struck by a hit-and-run motorist. He was taken in a passing machine to Providence Hospital, where his condition was reported as undeveloped.

You can always start the day with a smile if you turn to the page of comics in the Washington Post. Some of America's most famous cartoon characters have their laughable adventures there every day.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified croscote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs croscote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to croscote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the croscote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

LEESBURG MARKS
WORLD WAR END

Peace Thoughts Greatest Result of Struggle, Says
the Rev. Mr. Nelson.

WREATHS ON SHAFTS

Special to The Washington Post.
Leesburg, Va., Nov. 10.—A large crowd including more than 250 former service men, gathered in Leesburg this afternoon for the Armistice Day celebration held under auspices of Loudoun Post, No. 34, of which Harry C. Breckenridge is commander. It had been decided by the committee to commemorate the closing of the World War on Sunday instead of Monday, the actual date. There was an assembling at the courthouse at 2 p. m. of legionnaires and former service men at which Col. W. H. Clifford and Gen. William Mitchell, both members of the post, placed wreaths on the monument erected in memory of the Civil War veterans and also on the monument erected to the soldiers and sailors who lost their lives in the World War. The post chaplain, the Rev. D. C. Mayers, placed the memory of the late Leon H. Fry, former post commander, who was killed when thrown from his mount last June.

Exercises in Auditorium.
Following the exercises at the courthouse lawn, the former service men marched to the school auditorium, where an impressive celebration was held. The Rev. Mr. Nelson presided and music was furnished under the direction of Dr. H. C. Littlejohn. Mrs. Arthur Jenkins and Mrs. L. L. Nelson. Services were opened by the singing of America. Invocation by the Rev. W. M. Compton was followed by Bible reading by the Rev. J. S. Montgomery, a hymn and then prayer by the Rev. Mr. Nelson. Commander Breckenridge made a few remarks on the spirit of Armistice. This was followed by a short talk by Chaplain Mayers. The Rev. G. P. Craighill, rector of St. James Episcopal Church of Leesburg, introduced the Rev. Robert Nelson, of Winchester, who was the principal speaker of the afternoon. The Rev. Mr. Nelson said in part:

"One permanent contribution to human thought resulting from the great war is that of peace. Everybody in the world who is in touch at all with world affairs is thinking about today. The millions of men now living should ask themselves what permanent contribution they have actually made to the progress of the human race. All the suffering and sacrifice in this great war to end war will have been wasted unless an enduring attitude of mind be established by them between the nations of the world making the thought of the war forever too horrible to be endured."

Groups Unable to Aid.

Mr. Nelson said there are three groups of persons unable to make real contributions to the solution of the problems of peace. First, the pacifist who wants to disarm immediately, for immediate disarmament on the part of any one nation would be an invitation to any warlike nation to destroy this pacified people. Second, the militarist who says you can never disarm for peace will never be permanent and war will threaten the human race. The third group is the profiteer who makes money out of blood and suffering and is not interested in peace.

The Rev. Mr. Nelson made an appeal to the former service men to see that every element of the situation the nations be encouraged, making the prosperity of each the personal interest of all. Also that the service men should be the ones to lead the churches make as their supreme effort for the creation of the mutual sympathy and understanding between nations without which permanent peace is impossible. Benediction was pronounced by Father Bernard J. McKenna.

Dogs to Compete
At Trials Today

Virginia Field Association
Events Are to Last Through Tuesday.
Special to The Washington Post.
Petersburg, Va., Nov. 10.—The tenth annual field trials of the Virginia Field Trial Association will open tomorrow morning at Camp Lee, Prince George County, miles from Petersburg, and continue through Tuesday. Sportsmen who are to participate in the trials with their dogs began to arrive here this afternoon. The entry list is a large one. In addition to a number of dogs famous in Virginia, champions from New York, Maryland, Delaware, North Carolina and the District of Columbia are to take the field. The judges are W. G. Hundley, of Calland, and Dr. W. T. Shupe, of Booneville, N. C.

The Derby stake will be run tomorrow, and the All Age Stake on Tuesday. As game is reported to be plentiful at Camp Lee, those who are to participate are anticipating exciting sport. Dan S. Hollings, business manager of the Petersburg Chapter of Commerce, is general chairman of the committee, and every detail has been worked out to make the trials the best and most successful the association has ever held.

Tomorrow night a bench show is to be given in the Armstrong Building, when some of the most noted dogs in this county are to be exhibited. Charles B. Cook, of Beaverdam, is to be judge. R. C. Parsons, chairman of the bench show. One of the principal prizes is a large sterling silver bowl, valued, it is said, at about $2,000.

Auto Overturns Twice;
Occupants Miss Death

Special to The Washington Post.
Culpeper, Va., Nov. 10.—Five members of Culpeper's younger set had narrow escapes yesterday afternoon when their car was in collision with another 4 miles south of Gordonsville. The Culpeper party was en route to the Virginia V. P. I. football game at Charlottesville and came to the intersection of two routes before the driver realized it. It was too late to try to stop so they kept across the intersecting road and just as they were nearly across, another car struck the rear of their automobile, causing it to overturn, making two complete revolutions and coming to rest on all four wheels.

LABOR RIOT TRIALS
START TOMORROW

Marion Docket of 119 Cases
Due to Recent Strike, to Occupy Weeks.

HOFFMAN HEADS LIST

Marion, N. C., Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Several weeks probably will be taken up in trial of cases growing out of the labor riots at the Clinchfield and East Marion cotton mills during the last three months, court officials said today. There are a total of 119 cases on the docket of the special term of court opening here Tuesday. The term was called to try all cases growing out of the riots in which a number of men were killed and scores injured.

The first case to be called will be that against Alfred Hoffman, organizer for the United Textile Workers of America; William Russell, W. L. Hogan, Was Fowler, Del Lewis and J. Hugh Hall, of Marion. These six are charged with rebellion against the State and conspiracy to riot. A special venire has been called from the adjoining county of Rutherford from which a jury will be chosen for the trial.

Troubles Followed Strikes.
The labor disturbances here following the strikes called in the two Clinchfield mills and the Marion Manufacturing Co.'s mill by the United Textile Workers of America, of the American Federation of Labor.

Besides the rioting and rebellion charges against the six men and several score strikers which make up the majority of the big docket of 119 cases, there are charges of murder against eight deputy sheriffs. These deputies are accused of having shot six men who died after a riot and gun battle at the gates of the Marion Manufacturing Co. plant on October 2.

The term of court originally was called for November 11, but due to Armistice Day celebrations it was postponed a day.

Will Withdraw Troops.

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Gov. O. Max Gardner announced tonight that National Guard troops which have been on duty at Marion since October 2 when six men were killed, still are in the town. He said the troops would be withdrawn tomorrow afternoon.

The governor said he had had a survey of the situation in Marion and had decided troops were no longer needed to preserve order there.

The troops were sent to Marion to aid civil officers in preserving peace in the village of the Marion Manufacturing Co.'s mill at which a strike called by the United Textile Workers of America is in progress.

Macon, Ga., Nov. 10 (N.Y.W.S.).—After a spirited attack by the Rev. Bascom Anthony, 80-year-old presiding elder, on "Miffins in the Bishopric," the South Georgia conference here yesterday opposed, 157 to 28, the life tenure of bishops in the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

DOCTOR HEARINGS
BY MARION CHURCH

Dismissal of Twelve of Baptist Members to Be Reviewed.

ONE DEACON EXCLUDED

Marion, N. C., Nov. 10 (A.P.).—A church conference at which the differences which have rent the little East Marion, Methodist Episcopal Church will be thrashed out by the entire membership will be held probably next Sunday, it was announced today by church officials.

The announcement came after several of the twelve members, who last week received their letters of dismissal, had approached church officials and demanded to know the reasons for the action.

The dismissed members at the time they received their letters charged it was because they had joined the board of deacons had decided to authorize the church secretary to take the action he did in order to avoid the publicity of a church trial for some and "to spare their feelings."

Members who had not taken sides in the matter today counseled a meeting of the entire church with the press and nonmembers of the congregation excluded. After morning services A. R. Flack, secretary of the church, said the meeting date would be made public later and that it probably would be held Sunday, November 17.

Mrs. Dan V. Elliott, wife of Dan V. Elliott, a strike leader, together with G. A. Bradley and his son, Ernest, did the talking for those who were given their letters.

"I have done no wrong and I don't see what you have done to me," Mrs. Elliott asserted in tears.

Her husband is now a student at Brookwood Labor College, Ketchikan, N. Y. He formerly was president of the board of deacons and teachers of the Young Men's Bible Class of the church.

Husband Is "Excluded."

Mrs. Elliott yesterday made known the contents of her letter to the members dismissed her from the East Marion congregation with the privilege of joining any other congregation of the denomination. A postscript, however, stated her husband had been "excluded."

The Rev. S. J. McCalister, who is filling the pulpit of the church, said that because it has no regular pastor, did not refer to the dismissals in his address to the congregation this morning. After the church services Mr. Flack and A. M. Swan, a member of the church who took a leading part in the effort to smooth the affair out, asserted the whole thing was a mistake.

"The exclusion of Dan Elliott without trial was a serious mistake," Flack, who wrote the letters and signed them as secretary, asserted. "It should never have been done without church trial. We have agreed that there will be a meeting of the church at which the whole matter will be thrashed out."

"There have been charges made against some of the members which if borne out would be serious enough to put them out of the church. We will think and we will save their feelings by handling it the way we did."

W. J. Toney, a member of the board of deacons, declared the union affiliations of those dismissed had nothing to do with the dismissals.

"The question of whether to deal with members of the church who were church came up at a meeting of the deacons," he said. "Some were moving away, and we felt that others had done enough to have charges preferred. We thought it better to give letters than to prefer charges."

Toney said conduct of those dismissed since a strike was called at the Marion Manufacturing Co.'s mill was the reason for their dismissal. Four of those dismissed are under charges of assaulting a woman in connection with strike disorders.

LEGIONNAIRES HEAR
SENATOR STEINER

Adequate Protection and World Peace Are Stressed.

ARMISTICE DAY SPEECH

Special to The Washington Post.
Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 10.—"It is not inconsistent to look toward world peace and at the same time have cruiser strength sufficient to protect ourselves," declared Senator Frederick Steiner, of Oregon, in a American Legion memorial service here this afternoon.

Congressional action in the cruiser bill established before the world that America presented two alternatives to other nations as regards naval armament, he said. Either that other powers must scale down their strength to meet that of the United States or the United States would increase its strength to secure parity with other powers.

"Whether or not we have put an end to war," he declared, "I feel that a great and lasting step was made in human happiness with the Armistice of 1918. War clouds sometimes appear, but the great nations of the world are not bent upon war."

"The world disapproved the flippant doctrine that a solemn treaty was a scrap of paper and there is evidence of willingness to disarm. We seek relief from the tremendous burdens of war. In all these things America is committed. We are not yet fully united as to the means by which the result is to be accomplished. The task is not complete. We cannot be secure in the blessings of peace unless we seek and obtain just understanding of our duty to the world and to ourselves."

"This is the responsibility of the individual citizens and not alone that of organized government. The observance of this day will be justified many times over if it brings to the mind of all Americans the thought that honorable peace is worth while and the thought that it can be promoted by just government."

Senator Steiner was introduced by Dr. James A. Duff, this city, legion commander in the Department of West Virginia.

Resort Cottage Razed
By Fire in Mountains

Special to The Washington Post.
Harrisonburg, Va., Nov. 10.—Fire last night destroyed the cottage of Dan F. Wine, former secretary of the Shenandoah Valley, Inc., at Rawley Springs, Harrisonburg summer colony in the Shenandoah Mountains, 12 miles west of here and threatened to wipe out the lower level of the resort. Loss is estimated at $3,000, partly covered by insurance.

Volunteer firemen freed the adjacent cottages and prevented the spread of the blaze to the surrounding forest by chopping down the trees that were in the spread of the fire. Origin of the fire is unknown. Early in the spring a blaze destroyed the dance hall, bowling alley and spring pavilion at the resort.

REV. J. W. DUFFEY
DEAD HERE AT 84

He Took Part in the Daring Capture of Federal Generals in War.

ONCE STATIONED HERE

The Rev. Jefferson W. Duffey, 84 years old, one of the outstanding members of Baltimore Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church South, died late Saturday at his home, 12111 Lamont street northwest, where he had lived since retiring from active ministerial duties some years ago.

Death followed a protracted illness. The funeral takes place tomorrow morning from Mount Vernon Place Church, of which he was a former pastor. The Rev. William A. Lambeth, resident pastor, will be in charge, with interment in the Confederate section of Arlington National Cemetery.

A more lad at Moorefield, Hardy County, W. Va., at the Civil War outbreak, he joined McNeill's Rangers of the Confederate Army and often took a leading part in their daring war exploits. He was with the McNeill detachment which captured Gens. Crook and Kelly, of the Union Army, in a Cumberland (Md.) Hotel, regarded as one of the most audacious acts of the war.

Becoming converted at an evangelistic meeting while in the hotel business at Moorefield after the war he felt called to preach and had been on the Baltimore Conference rolls since 1869, developing by his own efforts into a preacher of unusual power and influence and effectiveness as an orator and logician.

He had in recent years contributed many Civil War reminiscences of historical value to Southern publications. He had been presiding elder of Washington and Winchester districts and pastor at many churches, including Falls Church, Va.; Martinsburg, W. Va.; Central Church, Baltimore; Mount Vernon Place, Washington; Harrisonburg, Winchester and Alexandria, Va., and lastly at Rockville, Md.

Surviving are a widow, formerly Miss Nannie Hyder, of Moorefield, whom he married July 10, 1872; two daughters—Misses Sue and Mary Duffey, of Washington, and two sons—John Humbird Duffey, the operatic singer, of New York, and Hugh S. Duffey, superintendent of Handley Foundation Schools, Winchester.

The "Pink" sports section of The Washington Post is the preferred medium for local fans because it is so comprehensive in its coverage of all sporting events in the various classifications and in both amateur and professional fields.

Talk Given By Hoover Is Feature

President's Armistice Day Address to Beelayed to Radio World by Net Systems, as Will Be Wilson Rite.

An address by President Herbert Hoover is the outstanding feature of this year's observance of Armistice Day by the Nation. The National Broadcasting Co. and the Columbia Broadcasting System will transmit it to the four corners of the country and the earth. The occasion will be the American Legion's official Armistice ceremony at the Washington Auditorium at 8:30 o'clock. President Hoover will be introduced by Maj. O. L. Bodenhamer, national commander of the American Legion.

Following immediately upon the heels of Ramsay MacDonald's "peace visit" to this country and preceding the impending five-power conference called for London in January, it is said President Hoover will take advantage of the opportunity for discussing what now impends in the field of naval disarmament.

The musical background will be supplied by the United States Army Band. George F. Hicks and Frederic William Wile will announce the broadcast for the N. B. C. and C. B. S., respectively.

The first local Armistice Day program will be heard from Station WMAL at 11 o'clock when a service from the Washington Cathedral will be broadcast over a national network. The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, will speak, and the musical portion of the program will be furnished by the National Cathedral Choir of Boys, under the direction of Edgar Priest.

At the same hour Station WJZ, in New York, and a network of stations, will broadcast an original radio adaptation of the famous war play, "Journey's End," by the original Broadway cast from the studios. A feature of this production is that it points out the futility of war, rather than emphasizing the glamour or glory. In offering this drama, the NBC is participating in what is an attempt to visualize the horrible aspects of battle, which includes a separate performance by the London cast in the studio of the British Broadcasting Corporation at the same hour, London time. Both the NBC and BBC versions will be relayed by short-wave transmitters in an attempt to reach the rest of the world.

Memorial services for President Wilson will be held at his tomb in Bethlehem Chapel of Washington Cathedral will be broadcast by WRC and other NBC stations from 3 to 5:45 o'clock this afternoon.

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, will make the principal address. Prayers will be offered by the Rev. James Taylor, pastor of Central Presbyterian Church, where Woodrow Wilson attended while in the White House. Again the music will be furnished by the Cathedral Boys Choir.

William Hard will be in the studios of Station WRC at 7:45 o'clock for his regular discussion of what is "Back of the News in Washington."

Matthias Atwood, Metropolitan Opera soprano, as prima donna of the A. F. W. will be the featured artist in the Armistice Day program of the Family Party at 9:30 o'clock from WRC. Miss Atwood will sing the songs that made her popular with the Pershing boys while she was "over there." Henry Hadley will conduct an especially organized symphony orchestra during this broadcast.

Floyd Gibbons will be heard at his regular hour, followed by "Amos 'n' Andy" and a local dance program.

An episode in the celebration of Armistice Day in Paris on November 11, 1918, will be broadcast to the radio audience in the "Evening in Paris" broadcast from WMAL at 9:30 o'clock.

"International Football as Exemplified in Recent Games" will be discussed by Grantland Rice, writer and authority on athletics in the program at 10 o'clock. The musical part of this program will be furnished by "Red" Nichols and his Five Pennies.

Nino Martelli, the new Columbia tenor, will be featured in the Voice of Columbia program to be broadcast at 10:30 o'clock. He will sing "A Te O Cara," "I Found a Friend," and "Spirito Gentile" from "La Favorita." Donizetti.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

A MOVEMENT to bring about the enactment of a law to prevent "radio rowdies," as they have been characterized in New York City from disturbing their neighbors in apartment houses is under way there under the leadership of Robert Grimshaw, author and lecturer, of the Bronx. He declared that he has moved a dozen times to escape noises produced by receiving sets going full blast.

"We are going to ask that the landlord be held responsible for unnecessary noise," he said. "We want more teeth put in the nuisance law. The radio menace should be under the department of health."

The size of loudspeakers should be limited and stations should be prohibited from broadcasting before 8 o'clock in the morning and after 11 o'clock at night, another protester insists.

Radio messages travel at the speed of light, approximately 180,000 miles per second, or as Radio Commissioner LaFollet put it "seven times around the world while your clock ticks once."

SHOWING what a good man can do when he takes broom in hand was the way H. S. Brown, of New York, president of the Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation, cleaned up the last R-K-O hour. Not only did it contain the minimum amount of advertising, but gone were the personal puffs and plugs the actors used to slip in about themselves. Even McNamee showed great improvement in his handling of the program.

That being the case, listeners no doubt will look forward with renewed pleasure to the next R-K-O hour at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow night.

The worst punished of the classical selections on the air last week was "Pomp and Circumstance," by Elgar. It was even included in the Westinghouse hour, which was supposed to be new from the ground up.

AS the needs for an international police force become less apparent, the American Peace Society, in an Armistice Day address broadcast from Indianapolis, "that force we call our Army and our Navy will diminish, but until then we must accept the situation for what it is, rather than as our hearts desire it."

RADIO history will be made by the Washington Cathedral, the first to have its services broadcast twice in one day by Nation-wide networks of stations. The Armistice Day service will be broadcast at 11 o'clock by the Columbia System and heard locally through WMAL, and the memorial services at Bethlehem Chapel at 3 o'clock will be transmitted by the National Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation.

THIS is the year of all years to give the Britannica for Christmas! For today you can give a completely new Encyclopaedia Britannica—the superb 14th Edition, which has just come from the presses.

A Gift That Brings Lasting Appreciation

All the family is included when you give this new Britannica for Christmas!

Here is a Britannica made new from cover to cover. A Britannica so different from any other encyclopaedia that there is literally no comparison.

Everyone in the home will be thrilled with such a gift. Think of the eager excited interest at Christmas! These twenty-four handsome volumes, in the graceful bookcase table which is included with each set, will attract all eyes.

For Young and Old Alike

There will be no gift more exciting beneath the Christmas-tree this year; no gift, certainly, which will give such lasting pleasure.

The child in school, the woman who wants practical help with her home or family, the student engaged in research, the busy man of affairs whose reading time is limited—for everyone this superb Britannica is the gift of gifts.

And it is a gift for 365 days of the year. To you, and to everyone, it opens the limitless possibilities of modern knowledge. It brings you in direct contact with the greatest leaders of world thought and action, gives you the full benefit of their best wisdom and judgment, gives you knowledge and education unequalled in scope and practical value.

Greatest "Home University"

It is the greatest "home university" ever devised. You need not leave your living-room or library, yet your instructors will come to you from every quarter of the globe.

Wherever the finest things of life are appreciated, men and women are proud to own the new Britannica. The handsome bindings, the profusion of rich and colorful plates, indeed the superb craftsmanship shown in every detail, set this book apart as a gift of rare distinction.

This new Britannica, prepared at a cost of more than $2,000,000, is a library in itself—written by 3,500 authorities from 50 different countries.

Extremely Low Price

YET this incomparable Encyclopaedia comes to you at a tremendous saving! Never has any encyclopaedia offered such manifold riches as this one does. And not in two generations has a completely new Britannica been offered at so low a figure! Mass production has made it possible to place the greatest of all encyclopaedias within the means of all.

BODY OF LYNCHING
VICTIM IS BURNED

Dead Man Dragged Through Florida Town; Sheriff
Tells of Seizure.

COVERED BY SHOTGUNS

Quincy, Fla., Nov. 10 (A.P.).—County and State officials began an investigation today into the lynching here last night of Will Larkins, Negro, charged with an attack on a 12-year-old white girl, by a mob of between 35 and 40 masked men.

Less than 12 hours after Larkins had been indicted by a special grand jury and a special term of court had been called for his trial, his body, bullet riddled, was dragged through the streets of Quincy, tied to the rear of an automobile. Later it was burned.

The shooting of the Negro and the burning of the body took place at the scene of the attack, about a mile from here, just off the Midway highway.

Taken From Sheriff.

The Negro was taken from Sheriff Gregory at the point of about ten miles east of Madison, at 7 o'clock last night. The sheriff was taking Larkins to the Duval County Jail at Jacksonville, under orders of Gov. Doyle Carlton, after the Negro had previously been placed in the Madison Jail for safekeeping following earlier mob threats.

According to the sheriff, he and his deputies stopped when the masked mob appeared before them on the highway, thinking that an automobile accident had occurred. As they halted, an unidentified masked man pointed a shotgun and demanded the Negro, explaining that there would be no trouble if Larkins was turned over to the mob.

Gregory said he told the man that he would not give up the Negro. Then another man pointed his shotgun at him and repeated the demand. While they argued, Gregory said, other members of the mob seized Larkins and carried him away. The sheriff said he did not recognize any members of the band.

Body Shot to Pieces.

Two hours after the Negro was taken from the sheriff, he was taken back to the scene of the crime, and there, Gregory said, was literally shot to pieces.

The girl was attacked last Friday as she was going home from school. Officials said the girl identified Larkins as her assailant.

Last night a crowd began to gather in front of the jail shortly after Larkins had been arrested. The sheriff, fearing violence, took the Negro to Tallahassee for safe keeping. The next day the presence of Larkins in the capital jail became known, and Sheriff Frank Stoutamire, of Leon County, also fearing trouble, had the Negro taken to Madison County Jail.

Fishing Tug and Crew Rescued by Ore Carrier

Chicago, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—The steam fishing tug Indian, with Capt. James Peterson and a crew of nine safe, was towed to port here early today by the ore carrier Fontana. The tug's engine had been disabled 12 miles out and the craft was wallowing helplessly when picked up.

The Indian was many hours overdue and coast guardsmen were preparing to make a search for her when the ore carrier brought in the salvaged craft.

Fifth Ave. Fashions
NEW YORK

By MARIE FAUETTE.

Clothes for the little subdeb express a new chic sophistication. They follow every important detail of the gown-up mode in line and fabric.

The ensemble I'm showing today is especially popular because of its practicability as well as smartness for school and sports.

The coat has comfortable raglan sleeves so easily slipped on in a hurry. It is made of the fashionable red checked tweed. It closes at center-front and has slightly flaring hem.

It has a very becoming and comfortable neckline that may be worn open or closed high at neck. Patch pockets are sportive and useful. It's very simple to make. The front is underlaid and rolled into revers with the attached straight collar.

The one-piece dress is in matching shade in a featherweight tweed of diagonal weave. It has a Peter Pan collar so appropriate for classroom.

A lip closing finishes center-front with tiny red buttons. Long sleeves have turn-back cuffs. It is belted at raised waistline.

Style No. 8233 can be had in sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. In the year size the coat takes 1½ yards of 34-inch material, with 1½ yards of 34-inch lining. The separate dress is made with two yards of 39-inch material.

Wool velour in beige and brown check coat with beige wool jersey dress is attractive.

Dark bottle green broadcloth coat with matching shade wool crepe dress is ultra-new.

Independence blue checked tweed with matching shade wool jersey dress is youthful combination.

The dress can also be worn separately made of printed velvet, printed rayon crepe, wool challis print, and tweed-like cottons.

For a pattern of today's style, fill out coupon, writing very clearly, and send to state in number and size of pattern. Send coupon with 15 cents (stamps or coin) to Fashion Bureau, Washington Post, 259 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

Allen's Attack on Officials

WINS VOCIFEROUS APPLAUSE

Collins with double dealing in the McPherson case, and told the assistant prosecutor conferred with the state officials on every detail of the case.

After Inspector Shelby felt sure they had all the evidence in the McPherson case, tending to prove the woman was murdered, either destroyed or refused, Allen continued, "he magnanimously told me in the presence of newspapermen that if I proved my murder theory he would make me a detective sergeant, but also added that if I did not 'my goose was cooked'."

"Well," Allen remarked, "it looks like my 'goose is cooked' anyhow, but Mr. Shelby's goose just got by with its tail feathers."

He added, however, that neither Shelby or Kelly would ever lose their jobs, because they were "in the saddle" under the present system of District government.

Attacks Two Reporters.

The former policeman charged that Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, became alarmed a few weeks ago concerning the favorable publicity that he (Allen) was getting in all local papers, and forthwith employed two newspapermen, Robert Buck of the Daily News, and Bernard McDonnell, of The Post, to break it up by waging a campaign for Pratt.

Allen read Buck's alleged first story in which he was bitterly attacked, and then commented on an "alleged" interview which McDonnell wrote for The Post. Allen claimed any credit for his summoning of these two men as his witnesses at his trial in order to keep them from covering the proceedings. He stated a friend of his suggested that he call them as witnesses.

Each time Allen stated that his career as a policeman was finished, cries of "No, no," were made by his listeners.

But Allen stuck to that statement, and declared he had no further resource in the matter. He even intimated that his job at the gasoline station was at stake. He stated that business at the station had fallen off 50 per cent since he began working there.

"Many of the station's best customers have quit in order to avoid the possibility of gaining the enmity of the police force," he said. "I don't blame them at all, but at the same time I can't continue working for a man when he is losing business as a consequence."

Talk Enthusiastically Received.

After his talk, which was entirely extemporaneous, but enthusiastically received, Allen answered all questions asked him, but constantly warned of all disparaging remarks concerning policemen generally and the personnel of the Metropolitan force.

Pressed by one questioner concerning why he thought the District Commissioners would not intervene in the decision of the Trial Board in his case, Allen stated that two of the Commissioners already had been placed in embarrassing positions recently, and they knew their jobs would soon be terminated.

In answer to another question, Allen stated that because of political pressure the right type of men were not secured as Commissioners, but he expressed the hope that President Hoover would choose the proper men when he makes Commissioner appointments.

Secular League Praises
The Post's 'Sanity' Stand

Members of the Washington Secular League at the usual weekly meeting yesterday afternoon, at 1006 E street northwest, went on record as praising the sane policy of the Washington Post in condemning the irresponsible criticism of District officials in the recent period of wild journalism.

Sentiment was registered for the maintenance of discipline in the Police Department, but no action was taken on a resolution to this effect submitted during the meeting, in line with an established policy of the league. The resolution was introduced by John D. Bradley, a vice president.

O. J. Schuster, a writer, addressed the group on the subject, "Individual Participation in Social Progress," in which he based his remarks on comments of William James, noted American psychologist. Short talks followed by Lawrence Becker, of the Treasury Department, and Prof. J. W. Nigh, of Clarendon, Va.

Bermuda Aquarium Gets Eel 7 Feet Long

Hamilton, Bermuda, Nov. 10 (A.P.). The Bermuda aquarium has acquired the largest green moray, or giant eel, ever known to have been taken alive. The monster is 7 feet 6 inches in length. Fishermen credit the moray with ability to bite through a good-sized plank.

FLIER DETAILS FIGHT
WITH AIR MAIL JINXJack Webster, After Crash, Tells of Escape From
'Mountain Graveyard.'

LUCKY TO LIVE, HE SAYS

Phillipsburg, Pa., Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Jack Webster, 26-year-old veteran of the air mail service, was resting well in the state hospital here today after having beaten the "jinx" that lurks in the path of pilots traversing the "graveyard of aviators"—the Allegheny Mountains.

The same mountains and their treacherous elements that sent Mailman Ames and others to their deaths brought Webster's ship down from the air early Saturday morning as he flew from New York to Cleveland in a fleet storm, but Webster survived, although injured.

The flier was missing when the wreckage of his plane was discovered on the top of Rattlesnake Mountain, 2,000 feet above sea level, and an intensive search was started by volunteers and officials of the National Air Transport operators of the route. Twenty-one hours after the crash, Webster was found reclining along a highway leading to Phillipsburg by a party of local residents who had driven to the mountain to view the damaged mail plane.

Arm and Hand Fractured.
A fractured left arm, left hand and a finger, with severe bruises on the head, chest and other parts of the body were suffered by the pilot, who wandered about in confusion before being picked up. During his struggle to find aid he slept from time to time with the ground as his bed and when aroused continued his wandering. Webster said he was rendered unconscious as his craft struck the ground, and remained so until daybreak, at which time he set out down the mountain through a densely wooded territory.

Speaking of his experience, Webster, at the hospital today, expressed the thought that he was extremely fortunate. He added it would seem his rightful place was in a "pine box."

Ice Forms on Wings.
Detailing the crash, he said he ran into snow and sleet west of Bellefonte and that his ship grew heavy with ice clinging to the wings. He went above the clouds, reaching an altitude of 4,000 feet, and then started to fall. He said he could not check the loss of altitude or control the plane. Then he crashed. Aviators spotted the wreckage from the air after the flier had failed to check in at Cleveland. Soon the widespread search for Webster was begun, both on the ground and from the air. When darkness fell, the ground combers carried searchlights. Webster's home is at Plainsfield, N. J., and his wife arrived in Phillipsburg this afternoon, having traveled from Hagley Field, N. J., in the westbound afternoon mail plane over the route on which her husband had been nine years' service. Hospital attendants said Webster was expected to show a rapid recovery from his injuries and the effects of his long exposure.

Trust what the tribulations a father goes through only a father knows. This off-neglected observation on life is ably set forth in "Little Accident," the play that bunched in upon the stage at Poll's Theater last night and sent the Sabbath day pew-holders away in hilarious mood.

There is one scene in particular—the reception room in a maternity hospital—that comes near howling the boys out of their seats: so realistic is it, and so fraught with the fragments that shatter the risibilities. It all goes to prove there is a thin line of demarcation between tragedy and comedy. Thomas Mitchell, seen here so many times in typical American comedies, holds the spotlight in this play that seems to have grown out of himself. He is coauthor, with Ford Dill, the novelist, and has staged the vehicle. Whether the play was written or just built-up, as they say in the theater, is something which analysts to determine. It probably

as Prayers for Ruler, 61,

Echo at Altar.

Rome, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—King Victor Emmanuel III, Italy's "soldier king," tomorrow celebrates his sixtieth birthday, and his 42,000,000 subjects celebrate it with him.

Tonight public buildings throughout the kingdom were festooned with flags and strings of electric lights. Rome's commemoration began with a review of the capital's garrison followed by parades of Fascist organizations.

With the Lateran treaties in operation today's advance commemoration of the anniversary was participated in by the Catholic Church in Italy in imposing fashion. The prayer "for Victor our king" in abeyance since 1870, when the forces of Victor Emmanuel II occupied Rome, was intoned by the clergy. King Victor, rounding out the fifty-ninth year of his life, will go down in history as the sovereign whose government effected the solution of the "Roman question." Added to this accomplishment is the general rejoicing over the approaching marriage of his only son, Crown Prince Humbert, and Princess Marie Jose, of Belgium.

Center Market.

The Capital Market, which will succeed partially the Center Market, to be torn down to make way for the triangle development, will open for business at Fourteenth and Buchanan streets northwest by December 1, it was announced yesterday by Frederick J. Rice, owner. The market will be equipped with 61 uniform stands, modern lighting, heating and ventilating systems, and attractive lobbies and aisles.

The market will be operated, so far as possible, on a cooperative basis. A vacant lot next to the building has been reserved to provide adequate parking space. Vegetable wash rooms, separate fish stands and an incinerator are other features.

The location was chosen with the idea that the day of one large market to serve the entire city has passed, Rice said, and is being supplanted by neighborhood markets. The building was erected by the Wardman Construction Co. and designed by Milburn, Heister & Co.

Will you go to the theater tonight or will you stay home and listen to the radio? The Washington Post will help you make your decision by its daily listing of broadcast programs on the more popular stations and also by its comment and criticism of current plays and motion pictures by John Daly and Nelson Bell.

happened that Mr. Dell had an idea, a good story, and that Mr. Mitchell saw the possibilities of making much whoop-de-dee, using a bouncing baby boy as the bell-weather.

As an inkling of what it's all about this will suffice: A young fellow, Norman Overbeck, is apprised the day before his wedding to one girl that another young lady has taken a walk in the moonlight too seriously and that—well, he forthwith forgoes the nuptial rehearsal and his himself to a hospital there to learn that the mother intends to farm the baby out—via the adoption route. Rather than this, the bachelor father kidnaps the chee-lid. Then, in a boarding house where he turns up, there is another lass who promises to be nurse and wife, and so there are three young ladies where once there was but one.

With this fanfare of femininity swirling around him, Mr. Mitchell as Norman Overbeck, has a future around him all the time. All the time is necessary is for an audience to forget any idea of plausibility, to remember that "Little Accident" is farce pure and simple—and all ends well; even the final flare at the finish. There is a goodly company surrounding the star, and Mr. Mitchell, with all his worries, has the time of his life in this play that he built to order for himself. Fleming Ward, Susan Conroy, Rachel Hartwell and Katherine Hastings help bear the brunt of the burden heaped heavily upon the shoulders of Thomas Mitchell, that fine young brother of an Irishman who comes from the bog of the old County Down, in Pennsylvania.

GAYETY

"Kitty Madison," for years favorite performer in burlesque, appeared at the Gayety yesterday, this time assuming the role as owner and producer of her own show, "Jazz Time Revue."

Appearing just as active as she did years ago, Miss Madison goes over big in the few scenes in which she appears. With her are Ashton, Gladys Lockwood and Helen Nelson.

In looking for some one to take care of the humorous part of this cast, Miss Madison discovered a bundle of fun in Jack Hunt, a comic who keeps the crowd laughing throughout the entire performance.

Dolly Ashton, a clever comedienne, is responsible for much of the success of this show. She was forced to take several encores yesterday. Gladys Lockwood entertained with some fancy dancing and appeared in several scenes with Jack Hunt.

"Jazz Time Revue" boasts of a good chorus as any seen here this season. Nelson steps out from the chorus and goes over big.

BANK SAVING DROP
LAID TO STOCK LURE

$195,305,000 Decrease in Thrift Funds Reported to Bankers.

YEAR BEFORE HAD GAIN

New York, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—The most prosperous period in American history was marked by a decline in the aggregate savings of more than 50,000,000 individual accounts in the United States, the American Bankers Association reported today. The lure of easy profits in stock trading was cited by the association as one important cause of this economic paradox.

For the first time in the 20-year period, during which the association has kept a record of savings, the volume of individual savings showed a drop of $195,305,000 in the year ended June 29, 1929. The number of depositors likewise declined 524,221 to the present total of 52,864,127 during the same period.

In the previous year was recorded the largest increase of savings in the country's history, amounting to $2,300,000,000. W. Espey Albright, in charge of the savings-bank division of the bankers' association, says the total volume of savings deposits now stands at $28,217,856,000.

He believes that the sudden transformation in America's thrift habits, revealed in the sharp contrast between a gain of $2,250,000,000 last year and a drop of almost $200,000,000 this year, "indicates a fundamental change in the savings situation."

One outstanding factor, he says, has been the desire of the public to buy stocks and sit back comfortably while they go up.

"The loss in both individual deposits and savings deposits during this one year, after a rapid rise for fifteen years, should not cause undue alarm," he asserts. "The savings deposits per inhabitant for the year were $235, which is but $2 less than the preceding year."

This year's series of oil discoveries in Kansas was predicted years ago by Erasmus Haworth, head of the school of geology and mines at the University of Kansas.

Bartender Arrested
In Death From Fight

New York, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—A bartender in an alleged speakeasy was under arrest tonight in connection with the death of Nicholas J. Nelson, Jr., 38, of 1020 Ardmore avenue, Chicago, who died yesterday of injuries reported to have been inflicted during a fight. The bartender, William Boyce, was held on a charge of homicide. Nelson was the son of the president of the William P. Nelson Co., of New York, which deals in paints and wall paper and has branches in a dozen cities. Young Nelson was employed by the company and was here on a business trip.

Kidnapers of Furrier
Resume Ransom Talk

Tientsin, China, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—The kidnapers of Aaron Brenner, New York furrier, tonight resumed their telephonic negotiations for the large ransom they demand. It was believed that their calls were made from large offices in various parts of the foreign settlement, where there are numerous telephone instruments. Police raids on the Russian quarter today were fruitless and the gang, which was believed to have come recently from Harbin, have given no clue to their hiding place. Another registered letter was received from Brenner stating that the bandits continued to threaten him with death.

SUNDAY ACCIDENTS FATAL INJURIES; SENT TO HOSPITALS

Tractor Driver Dies After Losing Control of His Machine in I Street.

MAN RUN OVER BY FOUR
AUTOS CLINGS TO LIFE

Another Is Knocked Down on Bladensburg Road and Seriously Injured.

Traffic accidents in and near the District yesterday left one dead, two men with serious injuries and eight others less seriously hurt.

Herman Brower, colored, 22 years old, of 548 Twenty-fourth street northwest, died yesterday morning at Emergency Hospital from injuries received when a tractor he was operating, earlier in the day, struck a tree while he was traveling east on I street at Sixth street northwest. Brower lost control of the machine, it was reported. He received various severe lacerations and broken bones. The tractor was owned by the Littlefield-Alford Co.

Michael Guida, 45 years old, of 3217 Reservoir road northwest, was seriously injured early yesterday afternoon when he was knocked down by an automobile reported by Ninth Precinct police to have been driven by Louis Moser, of 2807 Connecticut avenue northwest.

Head Is Lacerated.

The accident occurred, police said, when Moser was driving south on the Bladensburg road near H street.
Guida was taken to Casualty Hospital in a passing automobile and treated by Dr. Rogers J. Young for lacerations of the back of the head.
His condition was reported to be undetermined.

Herbert King, 55 years old, of Silver Hill, Md., was reported to be near death at Casualty Hospital after being run over earlier in the day by four automobiles. Eleventh Precinct police reported that three cars ran over King, who had been left lying on the main highway near his home after being knocked down by the first car. Three men are being held at the precinct pending the outcome of King's condition. He is suffering from a possible fracture of the skull and internal injuries.

Youth and Sister Hurt.

A youth and his sister were injured when an automobile in which they were riding early yesterday morning collided with another machine on the Pennsylvania Avenue Bridge. The two injured were John
Walter Baxter, 21 years old, of 1808
D street southeast, and Dorothy Baxter, 20 years old, of the same address.

They were taken to Casualty Hospital. Baxter was suffering from a shock and lacerations of the hip. He was sent to his home after receiving treatment. The girl received lacerations of the face and arm. She was taken to the hospital. Fifth Precinct police reported that Henry Goldstein, 30 years old, of 719 Madison street northwest, was the driver of the other car. He escaped injury.

Found lying in the street unconscious, and believed to be the victim of a hit-and-run driver, John Green, colored, 44 years old, of 1231 G street northwest, was taken to Freedmen's Hospital early yesterday morning. Upon regaining consciousness later in the day, he told attendants that he recalled nothing of the accident, which he said he was hurt.
Police of the Second Precinct are investigating.

Street Car Passenger Hit.

Struck by an automobile shortly after he had alighted from a street car at Fifteenth and H streets northeast, Michael Guida, 45 years old, of 3217 Reservoir road northwest, suffered a possible fracture of the skull and knee, and a fractured left hand last night.

Police summoned the ambulance from Casualty Hospital and had him taken there for treatment. Guida, of Connecticut avenue near Woodley road northwest.

Two persons were hurt when the automobile in which they were riding collided at 8 o'clock yesterday morning on the Pennsylvania Avenue Bridge with a machine operated by Henry Goldstein, 30 years old, of 719
Madison street northwest.

The two injured were John W. Baxter, 21 years old, of 1808 D street southeast, who received medical aid at Casualty Hospital for a lacerated lip and shock, and was dismissed, and his sister, Dorothy Baxter, 20 years old, who suffered lacerations of the face and shocks. She remained at Casualty Hospital.

Collision Overturns Car.

Samuel M. Goldman, 50 years old, of 2109 Eighteenth street northwest, suffered possible internal injuries, a fracture of the right knee and lacerations on the nose at 11:30 o'clock yesterday morning at Sixteenth and streets northwest, when his automobile overturned in a collision with a machine operated by John Simpson
Burrows, 28 years old, of 3424 Warren street northwest.

Goldman, whose car turned over when it bounded into a street signal light post after the crash, was treated by Dr. Samuel M. Becker at 2228
Sixteenth street northwest and then removed to Emergency Hospital.

Frank Luttrell, 51 years old, of 614
Orinwood place northeast, suffered minor abrasions about the body at 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning at Pennsylvania avenue and Twenty-sixth street northwest while stepping from a street car when he was struck and knocked down by an automobile driven by Mrs. Daisy Joyce, 30 years old, of 1218 Pleasant street southeast.
He was treated at a private hospital at Twenty-fifth and I streets northwest and dismissed.
